ROOSEVELT FACES 2 REVOLTS

Triumph for Hitler in Sudetenland Today

FUEHRER TO GET WILD WELCOME IN NEW 'CAPITAL'

Eger Awaits Arrival of Dictator.

BAYREUTH, Headquarters of the German Army of Occupation for the Third Sudeten Zone, Oct. 2.—(AP)—Adolf Hitler will cross the frontier at noon [5 a. m. C. S. T.] tomorrow for a triumphant entry into Eger, "capital" of Sudetenland.

The Fuehrer will make his first visit to the new German territory a few hours after his troops have taken over the city.

Broken line shows route of victory march.

Konrad Henlein, newly appointed reichscommissioner of Sudetenland who returned to his home town of Asch today, will come here to accompany his Nazi chieftain.

[The propaganda ministry at Berlin would neither affirm nor deny Hitler planned a festive visit to Eger. It was admitted, however, that he had left Berlin Sunday at 10 p. m. [3 p. m. C. S. T.] for an unknown destination.]

Germans Occupy Eger.

EGER, Oct. 3 [Monday].—(AP)—Eger, the "capital" of Sudetenland, was occupied by Germany's official forces today.

The capital, ablaze with Nazi banners, tensely awaited the triumphal arrival today of Adolf Hitler.

The region around Asch and Eger, heart of Sudetenland, was annexed by Germany at 8:05 a. m. [1:05 a. m. central standard time] amid joyful scenes. Two thousand troops under Gen. Walter von Reichenau rolled across the border at Wildenau, a half mile from Asch, in camouflaged trucks. Other contingents crossed at Waldmuenchun, Schirnding, and Schwaderbach. Roads were lined with cheering crowds as the army moved into the third zone.

The provisional Sudeten German government posted a proclamation, which said Hitler would be in Eger at 1 p. m. [6 a. m. central standard time].

Hitler to Lead Troops.

He was expected to lead his gray clad troops into Sudeten territory at Asch, home town of Konrad Henlein, leader of the Sudeten German party and newly appointed reichscommissioner of Sudetenland. Then he was expected to proceed through the region as far as Carlsbad.

OCCUPY "ZONE TWO"

BY SIGRID SCHULTZ.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

WITH THE GERMAN ARMY OF OCCUPATION IN WARNSDORF, Oct. 2.—A fog hung heavily over the countryside this morning. It blanketed the smooth rolling hills and the white roads over which German soldiers later began entering the second zone of Adolf Hitler's "peaceful conquest" of the Sudeten German areas of Czechoslovakia.

The second of the four zones of Sudetenland to be occupied by German troops by stages through next Friday is in northern Czechoslovakia. There the post-war republic's territory thrusts up into Germany like two prongs. Yesterday troops began occupying the first zone. It is located in southwestern Czechoslovakia.

Despite a warning by military authorities that civilians would not be allowed in the newly occupied area without special permits, the country teemed with persons eager to witness the "historical Sunday of occupation." They besieged the border, but only a few managed to get through.

Tear Down Barriers.

Even before the German troops arrived, the population tore down the

Try This on Your Tractor: Horse Swims Golden Gate

(Picture on back page.)

San Francisco, Oct. 2.—[Special.]—The tractor may have taken the place of the horse on the farm, but no tractor ever swam across the Golden Gate here. Neither had any horse until yesterday. Blackie, a 12 year old gelding owned by Richard P. Roberts, did the trick, and beat Buster Olds, a veteran distance swimmer, to boot. Blackie came in a moment ahead of Olds, though the horse had to swim across with Roberts holding on to his tail.

CHICAGO ROARS A WELCOME TO CHAMPION CUBS

Fans Jump Gun on Official Greeting.

BY EDWARD BURNS.
(Pictures on back page.)

Several thousand of those popeyed Cub fans, as many as could jam their way to within a block of the Illinois Central depot, couldn't wait for Mayor Kelly's big official parade and reception for their conquering heroes. The formal doings had been arranged for this morning. The Cubs got home from St. Louis shortly after 11 o'clock last night. So the fans took matters in their own hands.

Route of Cubs' parade from Wrigley field to city hall.

And what a gun-jumping turnout it was. For many minutes after the National league champions alighted from their special train police and firemen were given a merry time keeping the roaring crowd in control. Chicago has had four National league pennant winners in ten years, but never before was there a spontaneous demonstration away from Wrigley field like the one at the station last night.

Police Rescue Hartnett.

A squad of police rescued Manager Gabby Hartnett after he had tried to find members of his family who had attempted to meet him but who were swamped far from the doors of the station. They took him to a fire department limousine and whisked him away before he had been mussed up too much by the fans who rushed to embrace him and slap him on the back.

No sooner had Gabby been wheeled to safety than the word came that Dizzy Dean had been waylaid in a parking lot while trying to find the cars of friends who had promised to meet him. A squad headed by Deputy Chief Fire Marshal Anthony J. Mullaney dashed to Diz, where he and Mrs. Dean were struggling to escape. They readily persuaded the Deans to forget the search for the car of their friends. They were bundled into a fire department vehicle and disappeared to the music of the howling siren.

The Struggle Goes On.

Other Cubs got similar treatment. But the scene was fresh out of rescuing fire marshals, so they had to fight their way to cabs which had been pushed back far from the loading pavement. Portable radio equipment was scattered here and there. But a word on a microphone tipped off the crowd that a Cub had paused in the mêlée. Those who were listening in must have heard more whoops than promises to beat the Yankees.

Photographers, a million of them, were firing away from every possible angle and elevation. Photographers are a blasé mob, but even they increased the din by popping their used flashlight bulbs at the feet of the scampering welcomers.

For every Cub athlete who got into the focus of a camera there were dozens of bugs who plunged or tugged in an effort to get their portraits in the paper alongside a great man. It was worse before the lenses of the news reel movie cameras.

This Is Something New.

The Cubs loved it even when there was danger of cracked bones. The lads made no attempt to be matter of fact. They have been used to excited folks in ball parks. But this was something different. They had clinched the pennant before a handful of envious and calm St. Louis partisans. They weren't prepared for this outbreak. Mayor Kelly, who rode back with them from St. Louis, had told them about his parade and reception. But he couldn't tell them about the outpouring at the old pile on Park row. He hadn't suspected it himself.

Going down to St. Louis after the historic Pittsburgh series, platforms were jammed at every station. And the crowds were just as big or bigger at the way points last night. Hundreds of folks were standing there just for a glimpse of the Cubs through

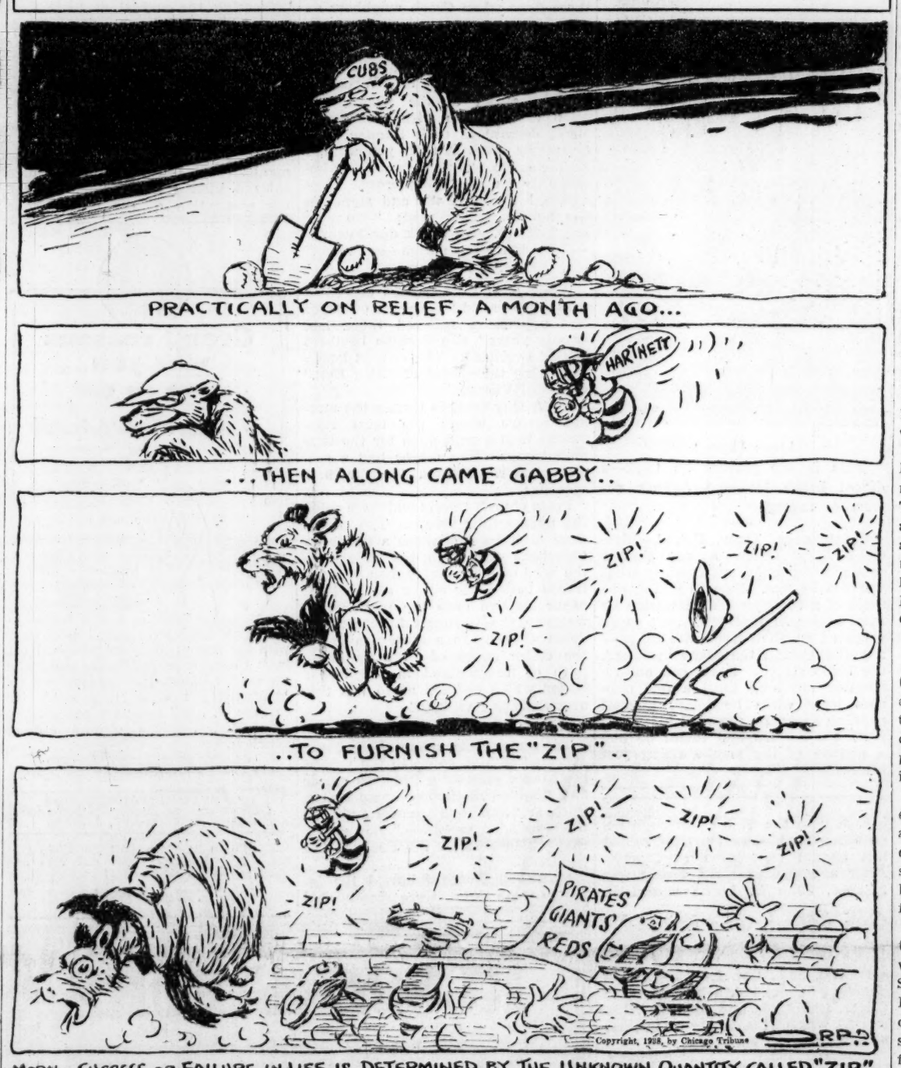
A LESSON FROM BASEBALL



Fall Spreads Coppery Cloak Over the Land

BY MARCIA WINN.

Maples shine copper-gold along the river banks. Pumpkins glint, great balls of orange, in wide green fields. Indian cigars, long, brown and plump, hang again from the catalpas. Yellow leaves drift down like clouds of butterflies, the prudent woodchuck has stored an inch of fat and thousands of turkeys are growing fat for Thanksgiving day.

With signs like these, fall is marking her advent to the Chicago countryside. The brilliant colorings which come with early frost are not yet here, but already a quiet haze lies over woodland and city; the smoke of burning leaves curls blue in a windless sky, and muted are the ardent songs of the birds.

Sparrow Pauses in Flight.

Instead, there comes only the plaintive whistle of the white-throated sparrow, as he pauses in his flight southward, or the sharp, metallic click of the myrtle warbler, last of the summer birds to desert the north. Even these give way before the steady, unceasing whir of locust and cricket, as they buzz life away in a world that is yellow gold overhead and brittle and dry underfoot.

By next Saturday the hard maple, now a mass of shimmering yellow in the sun, should be scarlet, Gordon Pearsall, curator of the Trailside Museum of Natural History, observed yesterday in a tour of forest preserves along the Des Plaines river.

Now, however, only vines and low lying shrubs have attained their full autumn vividness. Poison ivy carpets the hollows with trefoil splotches of crimson. Woodbine twines its scarlet and yellow scarf around the trunk of a blazing copper ash.

Ironwood Turning Yellow.

Here and there an ironwood is turning yellow, its leaves pale lemon against its shredded black bark. Hickory trees, green veins making a curious pattern on bright yellow leaves, are shedding nuts for greedy squirrels to garner.

Everywhere are the tokens of fall. The hawthorne, its green leaves just beginning to turn, is studded with the coral of tiny thorn apples. Acorns strew the ground. Walnuts are falling.

The orange-red berries of the bittersweet vine make bright pin points on the dark green thorn tree over which it is trailing. The elderberry is in fruit, hung with clusters of purple berries. Yellow sprays of goldenrod lighten a hollow. Thistle and asters make great purple patches in a green meadow. Dry, brown leaves crunch underfoot.

Last Hummingbird Flits By.

A clouded sulphur butterfly, winging its way about, seems drab without a bright flower to alight upon. A ruby-throated hummingbird, with no flowers from which it can drain honey, whirs wildly across the road, the last of its kind.

As final proof of fall's arrival, a slate colored junco, newly arrived for the winter, was seen beside the Des Plaines, its white tail outlined against yellow-green willow leaves. But . . . the mosquitoes still are violent. No one knows why.

SHOUT 'DOWN WITH HITLER'; FORCE BUND LEADER TO LEAVE

Union City, N. J., Oct. 2.—(AP)—A booing crowd which hurled stones and shouted "Down with Hitler" greeted Fritz Kuhn, national leader of the German-American Volksbund, here tonight. The crowd kept him from addressing a group of his countrymen assembled to celebrate a traditional Bavarian festival and Germany's acquisition of Sudetenland.

Police Commissioner Harry E. Little escorted Kuhn from the headquarters of the Hudson county bund after the crowd had made two attempts to break into the place.

After Kuhn's departure in an automobile the bund meeting was resumed undisturbed.

CZECH WAR VETS RETURN ENGLISH, FRENCH MEDALS

PRAGUE, Oct. 2.—(AP)—Rudolf Medek, president of Czechoslovakia's Legionnaires, of whom thousands fought in the French army during the world war, mailed a British distinguished service cross today to King George VI. of Britain.

"We wont wear it any longer," he observed.

The Legion also returned French decorations and police dissuaded its members from plans to march past the French legation and throw their medals in the doorway.

Girl, 12, Alters Shooting Story; Accuse Father

A little blonde girl and a skeptical chief of police yesterday stripped some of the mystery from the death of Mrs. Marguerite Matter of Brookfield. As a result, James K. Matter, gray haired, cultured industrial engineer, was formally charged with the murder of his wife.

Mrs. Matter, mother of three children, was shot to death with her husband's army rifle—he had carried it in the army of 1918—in the bedroom of the family home at 4233 Dubois boulevard, in the Congress Park section of the suburb.

Supported by Girl at First.

At first Matter, who was in the room, claimed that his wife had shot herself. His daughter, Martha Gene, 12 years old, supported the story. She had seen the shooting, she said. But Chief of Police Thomas Mahoney asserted this was an impossibility. There were no powder burns on Mrs. Matter's body, he pointed out. Further, he said, Mrs. Matter could not have pulled the trigger to shoot herself with such a weapon—her arm was not long enough.

Then Martha Gene, after a little questioning, changed her recital. She said she had been in another room, with her two small brothers, when the rifle cracked. She went into the bedroom. Her mother was lying on a bed, bleeding.

Tries to Help Mother.

"Daddy was wiping the gun with a handkerchief," she said. "A shell fell out of it and he told me to keep it. Then I ran to the bathroom and got water and iodine. I wanted to help mother. When I got back daddy said she was dead."

Her father, the little girl said, had coached her in what to say. Chief Mahoney investigated further. He learned that the Matters had quarreled frequently. He learned also that the engineer, who had been out of work, had been taking drugs for several weeks to ease the pain of a shattered heel, suffered in an accident.

Circumstances Are Reviewed.

Still more significant, he discovered that Matter had fired a shot at his wife in their bathroom several months ago. The bullet was still embedded in the wall. The evidence

FARMERS AND LABOR TURN AGAINST DICTATOR RULE

A. F. of L. Presses War on C.I.O. and Wagner Act.

BY JOSEPH ATOR.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Houston, Tex., Oct. 2.—[Special]—Increasing divergence between the policies of President Roosevelt and those of the American Federation of Labor, majority labor group of the nation, is reflected in the annual report of the federation's executive council, made public here today.

Labor opposes the drive of the New Deal to increase the power of government over the lives of its citizens. The A. F. of L. has had more than a taste of political dictation, in the activities of the national labor relations board, which it accuses of violent partisanship in favor of John L. Lewis' rebel Committee for Industrial Organization, and it wants no more.

No Mention of Roosevelt.

Nowhere, in the 70,000 word report, to be presented tomorrow to the federation's 58th annual convention, is there a word of criticism of the President himself. Many of his policies, particularly social security and housing, are warmly approved.

But with their labor board experiences in mind, the federation leaders are adamant in opposition to political dominance over labor, and to the substitution of administrative decisions by political board and commissions for clearly written statutory law.

Their stand is made clear in a bitter attack on the labor board, one of whose members, Donald Wakefield Smith, was recently reappointed by President Roosevelt over A. F. of L. opposition. It is reinforced by their statements of the federation's reasons for opposing the President's bills for political fixing of hours and wages and of his dictatorial reorganization bill.

Hit Labor Control Drive.

The C. I. O. secession, major issue of the last two A. F. of L. conventions, seems likely to be overshadowed at this year's convention by the resistance to the political drive for control of labor. The council report states:

"The American Federation of Labor has emerged triumphant from a most serious campaign to disrupt our organization and form a dual labor organization that has been interrupting our progress. This campaign has been waged with the support of some governmental agencies and those individuals and organized groups hostile to the policies of the American Federation of Labor."

The organized groups mentioned include the communists, whose C. I. O. affiliations have been a constant target of A. F. of L. leaders.

The federation's optimism has a solid basis. While depression and factional disputes have disrupted the C. I. O., the federation reports a gain of more than three-quarters of a mil-

Crop Control Breeds Loss of Votes in Middle West.

BY CHESLY MANLY.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Oct. 2.—[Special.]—Alarmed by the sweeping rebellion against the farm dictatorship scheme, which has failed to hold prices up or surpluses down, the Roosevelt administration is planning drastic changes in the law.

Secretary Wallace.

The proposed modifications are of such a substantial nature as to admit, by implication, the failure of the farm control law. No such politically dangerous admission will be made before the congressional elections in November, however.

The failure of the compulsory production control scheme is indicated by the price of wheat, which is about 50 cents a bushel on the farm, the lowest in more than five years.

Cotton Farmers Join Revolt.

The extent of the revolt of the cotton farmers of the south is indicated by a resolution adopted yesterday in Washington at a conference of senators, congressmen, and cotton growers from fourteen states.

"The financial condition of the cotton farmers is as desperate as it has been at any time during the depression," said the resolution.

From intimates of Henry A. Wallace, secretary of agriculture, it is learned that the administration has grave fears of losing large blocks of house seats in the corn and wheat states of the middle west in November's elections. Greatest concern is felt about Illinois, Indiana, Iowa, Kansas, and Nebraska.

Wallace Takes to Stump.

Because of these fears, Secretary Wallace has been making a stump tour of the grain and cotton producing regions, denouncing the growing demands for a government price fixing program and appealing for support of the present law.

Wallace is not making the mistake of telling farmers that his ever normal granary scheme, embodied in the agricultural adjustment act of 1938, is a failure. Instead he is hinting at some of the modifications on which AAA committees are at work.

From official sources it is learned that the administration is unwilling either to abandon the principle of production control or to carry it to its logical conclusion.

Admit Failure of Solution.

That would mean attempting to hold supplies down to the domestic consumption requirements, and abandoning the export markets entirely. It is admitted, however, that production control in itself will not solve the farm problem.

Wallace himself admitted this in a speech in Hutchinson, Kas., last Thursday, when he said: "The reason that control of the surplus, by itself, is not enough is that when you are offering wheat for export you must meet the price at which your foreign competitors offer their wheat. Through control of your own surplus you can guard against domestic price collapse, but you cannot hope, through control of your own surplus, to control the price of wheat throughout the world."

While thus admitting that production control as such would not work, Wallace told the farmers that the act gave the program another leg to stand on.

Subsidy Forms Inducement.

This was the subsidy payments, which he held out as an inducement for continued support of the crop control scheme. He explained that wheat farmers would get at least $150,000,000 of the $500,000,000 in soil conservation payments and $212,000,000 in price adjustment subsidies to be distributed to farmers on their 1938 crops.

The new departure at which Wallace hinted in his Kansas speech, however, involved subsidizing exports of wheat. This is the basic principle of the old Republican McNary-Haugen and export debenture farm bills.

Wallace explained that the administration has initiated a program to subsidize the export of 100,000,000 bushels of wheat, and said that out of total exports of 30,000,000 bushels since July 1, 10,000,000 bushels resulted from this program.

Purchases Go to Reliefers.

In addition, the federal surplus commodities corporation in June, July, and August purchased a million barrels of flour, graham flour, and whole wheat cereal for distribution to 2,600,000 families on relief.

From official sources it was learned that the administration has decided upon a permanent program of subsidizing the export of 100,000,000 bushels of wheat a year.

In his speech Friday in Fort Worth, Tex., Wallace opposed outright subsidization of cotton exports, because, he said, foreign cotton producing countries, unlike foreign wheat producing countries, are not doing this. Instead of an export subsidy for cotton, Wallace for the first time proposed a subsidy on domestic consumption.

Present Subsidy Forms Bounty.

Under existing legislation, the administration has been paying subsidies up to 3 cents a pound on the basis of 60 per cent of the normal production on the allotted cotton acreage.

This, however, is simply a bounty for compliance with the farm control scheme, whereas the new subsidy would be based upon the amount of cotton going into domestic consumption channels.

The details of this scheme are being considered by special committees of the AAA.

A third important change under consideration for the farm act calls for permanent subsidies on the domestic consumption by low income groups of fruits, vegetables, and milk. The purpose of such a program would be to make these commodities available to persons having low incomes at a price below that paid by other consumers.

LABOR COMBATS TREND TOWARDS A U. S. DICTATOR

Presses Its Warfare on Labor Board, C. I. O.

lion members in the last year, bringing the total to more than 5,000,000.

The attack on the labor board opens with the 1935 declaration of Senator Robert F. Wagner [D., N. Y.], father of the labor act, that:

"Any one familiar with these laws will recognize at once that there is nothing in the pending [labor relations] bill which places the stamp of governmental approval upon any particular type of union."

Indicted on Three Charges.

But, says the report, the board has brazenly aided the C. I. O., fostering its interests and by the effect of its decrees recruiting membership for the C. I. O. The indictment is summed up by three charges against the board:

"1. Of a large number of instances its agents have shown gross favoritism and bias in the handling of cases, furthering the objectives of one union against another and favoring one form of labor organization.

"2. By administrative fiat the board has set aside legally valid and binding contracts entered into in good faith by bona fide unions and employés.

"3. Through the arbitrary determination of appropriate units in cases concerning representation, the board has sought to impose on workers regardless of their wishes the [industrial] type of organization it favors."

Favors Minimum Wage.

The A. F. of L. as the report shows, had maintained a consistent stand on legal regulation of wages and hours. The only wages and hours bill it wanted was one that set a definite, general statutory limit on the number of hours worked and a definite, statutory level below which wages might not sink. Its objective is a maximum 40 hour week and a minimum 40 cent an hour wage.

The President's wages and hours bill, as originally introduced, gave almost complete discretion to fix wages and hours to a political appointee. Congress was asked to give him a blank check of power over labor and industry.

The A. F. of L. opposed this bill. The C. I. O. backed it. The compromise measure which was enacted still gives a politically appointed administrator too wide authority, in the view of the federation.

Amendments Are Sought.

The report states:

"It is the intention of the executive council to seek amendments to the law as soon as the insufficiency of some of its provisions have been shown."

Comment on the reorganization bill, which was defeated, is completely factual, but stresses the opposition of A. F. of L. unions to the substitution of political for nonpartisan control over the federal civil service commission and the government employés compensation commission.

The report contains an exhaustive account of the attempts to heal the breach with the C. I. O. through negotiations started at the close of the last annual convention at Denver. After a compromise agreement was reached, John L. Lewis vetoed it.

This is the picture he took—a direct bomb hit—and doesn't remember taking.

Chattanooga, Tenn., Oct. 2.—[Special.]—Billy Davis, a newsphotographer here, found out recently what war can be like. He was taking pictures of a bombing demonstration by Pilot Major Al Williams. Just as he prepared to photograph the target—a building—and the plane overhead, the bomb struck. Davis can not remember anything until a few minutes later when he found himself running away. He removed his plates from the camera and found he had a picture of the smoke rising just after the bomb hit.

barriers separating the former Czech territory from Germany. A small customs house, where the Czech guards held the fort until the day before yesterday, was covered with swastikas.

Warnsdorf itself was a sea of Nazi flags which were smuggled into Sudetenland after Hitler's Nuremberg speech in which he filed his claims to Sudetenland. The women proudly told of the skill with which they hid these flags when Czech neighbors or guards visited them. The guards, they said, searched all houses for Nazi insignia.

When we arrived in Warnsdorf slightly ahead of the troops, the town was feverish with excitement. Girls, dressed in their Sunday best, had their arms full of yellow and purple asters. They were waiting impatiently for the "conquerors." They admired the garlands and signs on the houses, which read: "We now are 80,000,000—we thank our Fuehrer—one people—one nation—one reich."

Practice Nazi Cheers.

While local Nazi leaders described what they called "the reign of terror and oppression suffered these last twenty years," two German bombers circled overhead. The crowds began practicing their cries of "Sieg Heil," or "Hail Victory."

Everybody tried to throng the market square where the local Nazi youths kept a path open for the German troops. The mayor had a special platform erected for the first speeches.

From church towers watchers spied the approaching troops. The cheers were in full swing when a major on horseback rode into the village at the head of his infantry men. As the troops halted the editor of the local paper stepped onto the platform to welcome the Germans in broad Sudeten dialect. In a flowery address, the editor spoke of "the unlimited faith of Sudetenland in our leader Hitler which enabled us to win this overwhelming victory."

Major Makes Flowery Speech.

The major, fully aware of what was expected of him, spoke in the typical high tenor voice of a Prussian officer and thanked all in the name of the Fuehrer "and Nazi pan-Germany for the wonderful reception." He closed with "Sieg Heil for the Fuehrer and pan-Germany."

Motorized troops followed the infantry men who were bombarded with flowers. Many soldiers made flower chains which they wore around their necks.

Beside the market square stood trucks. In them rested Sudeten Germans who had been injured in border clashes with the Czechs. They were witnessing the arrival of their German "liberators" who flung handfuls of flowers into the trucks.

In nearby Zinnwald, where hundreds have been awaiting the occupation of the Czech half of the village all day, a group of about twelve Czech guards were seen from the German side.

Gen. Fedor von Bock, who commanded the German troops which entered Vienna last spring, directed the occupation of the second zone today. At 7 p. m. the Germans reached their day's goal—the line running from the German border to Hermsdorf. They entered Czechoslovakia in five columns near Rumburg and Friedland.

The troops which moved into Czechoslovakia yesterday reached the town of Wallern tonight—the Sunday goal agreed upon between the Czech and German officers.

SWISS HUNT GERMAN AIRLINER CARRYING 13 ON FLIGHT TO MILAN

BASEL, Switzerland, Oct. 2.—(AP)—Swiss military planes searched today for a German airliner reported missing with ten passengers and a crew of three on a run from Frankfort on the Main, Germany, to Milan, Italy. The plane last was reported passing over a mountain highway near Davos.

Decline Passenger List.

FRANKFORT-ON-THE-MAIN, Oct. 2.—(AP)—Lufthansa's regular passenger plane, missing in Switzerland en route to Milan, Italy, left here at 12:25 p. m. Saturday. The company and the air ministry declined to give a list of the passengers but said there were no Americans aboard so far as could be abolished.

EARLY BIRD GETS PHILIP; 2 OTHERS HEAR OF A WORM

"The early bird catches the worm," Philip Zitek told two young men yesterday. Zitek, who lives at 3140 Highland avenue, Berwyn, is an attendant at the gasoline filling station at 4530 Grand avenue. The two men whom he addressed were bandits. They had demanded his money. Zitek recited his little piece about the early bird and told them he had no money because only a short time before another bandit had visited the station and robbed him of $6, all he had. The two bandits left, complaining audibly there ought to be a law.

THOUSANDS FLEE GERMAN ARMY IN CZECHOSLOVAKIA

PRAGUE, Czechoslovakia, Oct. 2.—(AP)—Thousands of men, women, and children fled today before the advance of the German troops in Sudetenland. They sought haven in areas that are to remain in shrunken Czechoslovakia.

Red Cross and other organizations provided refugee stations in social institutions, hotels and other establishments here and elsewhere.

Refugees filled trains arriving at Prague. Others came by automobile. Still others walked, carrying personal possessions from the homes they had abandoned.

Jewish refugees accounted for 20,000 of an estimated 70,000 who sought shelter in Prague, Brunn, and other cities. The bulk included Czechs, German Social Democrats, and other Germans who were not allied with the Sudeten German party and were opposed to Nazi control.

Most of the Jews were intellectuals, physicians, lawyers, factory owners, and merchants.

PROUD SOLDIERS HIDE CHAGRIN IN CZECH RETREAT

Smile Boldly at Nazi Maidens.

While flower bedecked German troops, with flags flying, advanced into the surrendered districts of Czechoslovakia a tragic story was being enacted. It was the story of the retreating Czech army. The first dispatches graphically describing this historic retreat reached The Tribune last night from its correspondent with the Czech forces.

BY ALEX SMALL.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

KAMNICE, Czechoslovakia, Oct. 2.—The withdrawal of the proud and excellent Czechoslovak army from the territory being occupied by Adolf Hitler's soldiers continued today. It went on piecemeal yesterday, but the removal from the Liberec region in northern Czechoslovakia was large and poignant.

There were miles of field guns, light and heavy, cassions, mobile anti-tank guns, here and there old-fashioned field kitchens, small platoons of cavalry now and then, and long supply trains.

The troops were obviously concealing their chagrin at what they consider a retreat. They smiled boldly at German girls who stared blandly at the soldiers.

Youngsters Patrol Streets.

That brings up the other side of the picture. The Germans north of Eichenberg were much better behaved than south of Budejovice [Budweis] or west of Eger. Youngsters clad in shorts with swastika armbands patroled the streets and for youngsters they were rather well restrained.

There was no shooting, no display of submachine guns, and no ticklish waving of newly acquired revolvers.

The countryside of this mountain region was breaking out in swastika banners and here and there a white streamer hung over the highway. The messages on these streamers varied, but their meaning was the same: "Welcome to our liberator, Adolf Hitler."

But what is a curious phenomenon in these parts were the refugees. They trudged along the highway still carrying their belongings in baby carriages. They were returning to their homes. They had fled before the imminence of war. They were glad Hitler is taking possession of Sudetenland. They showed it in their smiles.

Hitler Guards Arrive.

THE TRIBUNE correspondent turned back at Kamnice and looked for a route that would get him close to the advance of the German army. It was found first at Chrastava [Kratzau] where Hitler guards arrived on motorcycles and in automobiles. They were dressed in their famous black uniforms. They were cheered whenever they entered or emerged from Sudeten German [Nazi] party headquarters by a crowd of youngsters trained in the art of college cheering. Then came the town of Grottau, where the Germans took charge.

Following the motorcycles of the Hitler guards were three whippet tanks. German soldiers stood upright in the tanks. Following the tanks came a staf car with two officers in the back seat. One of them wore a monocle. Their welcome was enormous.

TROOPS ARE ANGRY

BY ALEX SMALL.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

KRUMLOV, Czechoslovakia, Oct. 1.—[Delayed in Transmission.]—Visibly angry at having to abandon national territory without a fight, and grimy and tired from a twenty-five mile march from the border during the night, the last Czechoslovak detachment left here at 7 o'clock this morning. The troops marched down the narrow, crooked streets accompanied by two Sudeten German youths armed with revolvers and bearing swastika armbands.

The Sudeten youths went with them to the city limits to prevent irresponsible fellow townsmen from using the Czechs as targets for some of the wild shooting they have been doing all night and today.

At the edge of town the Sudeteners turned back after a blond youngster had given a Czech soldier in the rear rank a patronizing pat on the back with his left hand and waved good-by with a revolver in his right hand.

Ridicule Roosevelt Notes.

The best picture of the Czech soldiers' and citizens' indignation and disappointment at having to cede the territory without a battle was presented by a detachment of infantry halting for rest and a glass of Pilsner just outside Grotlau.

The troops crowded around THE TRIBUNE correspondent, fiercely demanding why the British and French had let them down. Like many people in this part of the world they confused Americans with the British.

An explanation that they are not the same and that Franklin D. Roosevelt is the head of the United States and not Neville Chamberlain did not satisfy them a great deal. They derisively referred to President Roosevelt's notes to their arch enemy, Hitler.

There was a muffled sound of rifle fire and hand grenades from the heart of the town and the sergeant in command shouted: "Do you hear that? We're evacuating our own territory because you let us down and still they shoot at us!"

Offers Hand Grenades.

The sergeant pointed to an automobile at the roadside which had three machine gun bullets through it. But his anger subsided when he learned that this correspondent was unarmed. He declared that the "no man's land between here and the center of town is dangerous, better take this," and offered a hand grenade. His overcoat pocket was full of them.

Withdrawal of the Czech army followed the appearance of green rockets against the sky at 9 o'clock last night. The evacuation already was underway when THE TRIBUNE car sped toward Budejovice [Budweis] and Krumlov. The highway was streaming with troops and equipment, howitzers, motorized field pieces, and cavalry horses headed away from the German frontier.

Krumlov, in normal times known as the gateway to the Boehmerwald, today was a no man's land where shooting was promiscuous, where every man's finger was on the trigger and where scores are being settled. A communist was marched off to jail which had just been emptied of Sudeten Germans who had been arrested for political activity. Many who stayed behind also were being imprisoned.

"No man's land" extended from the top of a hill outside of town—where a Czech officer and a squad of helmeted infantrymen held the highway toward Prague—to the old city gate behind which Sudeten Germans with rifles and machine guns held the main street.

Each frontier post accused the others of being responsible for the shooting which broke out every half hour.

HUNGARY MAKES DEMANDS; CZECHS AGREE TO SETTLE

Return of Border Territory Asked by Budapest.

BUDAPEST, Hungary, Oct. 2.—(AP)—Czechoslovakia has agreed to negotiate for a "peaceful settlement" of Hungary's territorial and minority demands, it was disclosed tonight.

Bela Imredi.

The Czech foreign minister, Kamil Krofta, made the offer to the Hungarian minister in Prague at the same time the Hungarian demands were on their way to the Czech capital.

Prague suggested that a Czechoslovakian-Hungarian commission negotiate an agreement which would affect the 800,000 Hungarian minority. Hungary was said to have been agreeable to the proposal and asked that negotiations start at once.

Hungary's Three Demands.

The official Hungarian press agency quoted Premier Bela Imredi as saying in an interview that "we consider the return of Hungarian territories in Czechoslovakia to Hungary a settled question."

A Hungarian foreign office spokesman said Hungary's demands included:

"FIRST—Unconditional, immediate return of all territories which are known as purely Hungarian regions along the southern border of Czechoslovakia.

"SECOND—An immediate plebiscite in all other political districts of Slovakia and Ruthenia to determine whether these populations wish to stay in Czechoslovakia or to join Hungary.

"THIRD—The general right for a plebiscite for all other minorities."

Reliable Hungarian quarters said demands for "pure Hungarian territories"—given to Czechoslovakia as a result of the world war—would include an area of about 4,000 square miles northwest of Budapest.

They said its boundary, beginning at Komarno, would extend northeast to Novi Zamky and Nagysallo, whence it would turn southeast to the Hungarian border near Balassagyarmat. Eastward along the same border, they said, were numerous "Hungarian islands."

The so-called mixed area for which a plebiscite is said to have been demanded by Hungary and in which not more than 50 per cent of the population is believed to be Hungarian, begins twenty miles east of Bratislava. It is a strip about twenty miles wide.

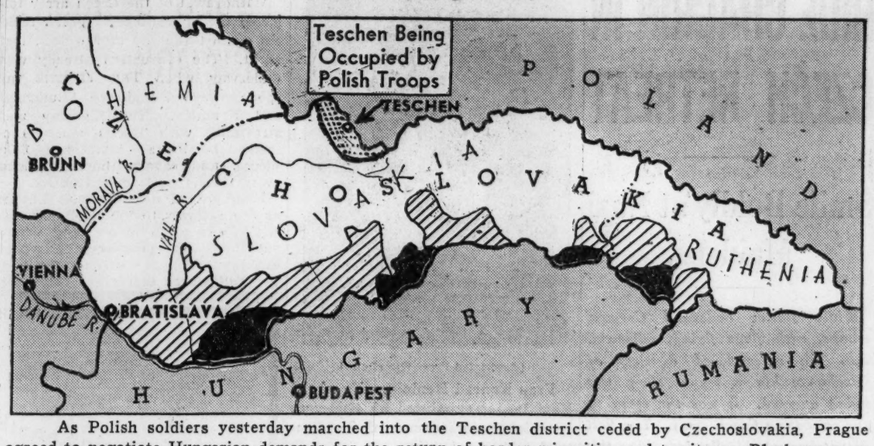
Soldiers Still at Border.

BALASSAGYARMAT, Hungary, Oct. 2.—(AP)—A tour of inspection today proved that Czechoslovak mobilization still was in full force along this border. Czechoslovak soldiers in large numbers stood guard behind electrically charged barbed wire.

Highways connecting Hungary and Czechoslovakia were blocked. There still was no railway communication between the two countries. On hills close behind the border Czechoslovak artillery exercises were being held. There were no troop movements or any fortifications visible on the Hungarian side of the frontier.

Poles March In; Czechs to Negotiate with Hungary

(Story in adjoining column.)



As Polish soldiers yesterday marched into the Teschen district ceded by Czechoslovakia, Prague agreed to negotiate Hungarian demands for the return of border minorities and territory. Black areas on map locate districts which have from 70 to 90 per cent of Hungarian population. These, Hungary demands be returned outright. Diagonally shaded areas are districts with 10 to more than 50 per cent of Hungarian population. Hungary demands that plebiscites be held in these areas.

BRITISH SUPPORT IS UNDIMINISHED, FRENCH ASSURED

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

PARIS, Oct. 2.—A message of thanks sent by Prime Minister Neville Chamberlain to Premier Edouard Daladier for the latter's share in the Munich conference was taken here tonight as assurance that the "gentlemen's agreement" reached between Chamberlain and Reichsfuehrer Hitler will not take precedence over British commitments to aid France in event of German attack.

Despite the French assertion to the contrary, real concern is felt here over the budding London-Berlin friendship. This is not diminished by the belief prevalent here that Chamberlain would gladly see the soviet union—which is united with France by a mutual defense pact—eliminated altogether from European concern.

Chamberlain's message is expected to help Daladier answer parilamentary questions on Tuesday as to why he did not sign a "no war" declaration with Hitler similar to that of Britain and Germany.

BRITISH KILL 67 ARABS IN TWO BIG PALESTINE FIGHTS

JERUSALEM, Oct. 2.—(AP)—Officials said today sixty-seven Arabs were killed in two large scale engagements yesterday with British troops and police. A British inspector was killed and two soldiers were injured. Hundreds of Arabs were wounded.

Twenty-seven Arabs died in an engagement on the outskirts of Haifa and forty at Ramallah.

Gen. Sir Edmund Ironside, recently appointed commander-in-chief of the British forces in the middle east, is in Jerusalem conferring with authorities. New measures were planned in an effort to end the outbreaks of violence before winter.

ACCLAIM POLES AS MASTERS OF CEDED DISTRICT

Soldiers Occupy Teschen on Czech Frontier.

TESCHEN [On the Czechoslovak-Polish Frontier], Oct. 2.—(AP)—Polish troops, with flowers in their arms, marched across the frontier bridge today to occupy the Teschen region given up by Czechoslovakia to Poland.

The soldiers, followed by civilians, crossed the river Olsa at 2:05 p. m. [7:05 a. m. Chicago time].

In the next ten days the troops gradually will occupy 300 square miles with a population of more than 200,000, most of whom are Polish.

Czechoslovak troops began evacuating Teschen yesterday after their government took what it called "this painful decision" to yield to Poland's demand for the territory Czechoslovakia has had since 1919.

River No Longer Frontier.

Marshal Edward Smigly-Rydz, inspector general of the Polish army, spoke over the national radio from Warsaw to the soldiers waiting for the order to cross into the territory.

The river Olsa, he said, no longer is a frontier river.

Crisply then he commanded:

"March!"

Polish military planes circled overhead and the first Polish soldier, astride a motorcycle, appeared on the bridge.

Troops followed, crossing the river which had marked the split of Teschen into Polish and Czechoslovak territory.

In both parts of the town—now both Polish—red and white Polish flags waved from nearly every window.

Peasants Celebrate Holiday.

Throughout last night and during the rainy morning, thousands of picturesque peasants and miners from nearby villages poured into Teschen to witness the historic moment.

Embankments of the river Olsa and roofs of houses on both sides were filled with spectators long before the troops advanced.

Following a regiment of Carpathian sharpshooters and Polish infantry came Polish Silesian insurgents who had fled to Poland in the last few weeks.

They were led by Dr. Leon Wolf, a deputy in the Czechoslovak parliament. He had been a leader of the Polish minority in the little republic.

All Poland continued to rejoice over the peaceful cession of the territory. Thanksgiving services were held in all churches.

The whole territory which Poland is getting without plebiscite is to be occupied by 1 p. m. [6 a. m. Chicago time] on Oct. 10.

It has hard coal mines at Karwin with an annual output of 1,000,000 tons and the important railroad junction of Bohumin where Warsaw lines to Vienna and Prague meet.

Questions concerning the delimitation of further territories and a plebiscite are to be settled by agreement between Czechoslovakia and Poland.

Quits Britain

GRETA NISSEN.

New York, Oct. 2.—[Special.]—She got to imagining she was smelling poisonous gas, Greta Nissen, the blonde Norwegian actress, explained as she arrived here yesterday. So she went down to Liverpool and got on a boat and came back to Broadway, where she hopes to find a job.

"It was just terrible," Miss Nissen said. "Everybody in England is talking about nothing else but A. R. P.—Air Raid Precautions. The English women just love it."

Miss Nissen had been living in England and doing all right, she said, making movies she doesn't like and doing legitimate rôles she likes.

"But that A. R. P.," she said. "People are getting up early in the morning to go around and ring other people's doorbells and ask them if they've got enough adhesive tape to stick on the windows."

BRITISH PREMIER FACES STORM IN COMMONS TODAY

Chamberlain Will Defend Foreign Policy.

BY DAVID DARRAH.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, Oct. 2.—Prime Minister Neville Chamberlain will be a target for political brickbats when he faces parliament tomorrow to give a more detailed explanation of the carving up of Czechoslovakia.

He will be attacked by Conservatives, Laborites, and Liberals in what promises to develop into one of the stormiest sessions in years.

Chamberlain returned to London tonight from Chequers. He was prepared to take advantage of his popularity as a result of the four-power Munich peace accord. It was said he might challenge his critics by calling a snap general election if the opposition appears strong enough to threaten to wreck his foreign policy program.

Sends Message to Daladier.

The prime minister sent a message to Premier Edouard Daladier of France. It was designed to allay French fears that British-French cooperation has been weakened. The message said: "I look forward to renewed and continuous coöperation with you in further efforts for consolidation of European peace through extension of good will and confidence which so happily inspired relations between our two countries."

Chamberlain also sent messages of appreciation to dominion and colonial representatives for their support during the crisis.

Chamberlain's stock was given a boost in a message to the nation by King George VI. The king said that the "time of anxiety is past," and applauded the prime minister's efforts to preserve peace.

Reservists Sent Back Home.

Although the British navy still is mobilized, the process of restoring it to normal has begun. Thousands of reservists were sent back home over the week-end. Anti-aircraft and coast defense units of the territorial army [national guard] also were disbanded.

Meanwhile, yesterday's resignation of Alfred Duff Cooper as first lord of the admiralty gave added impetus to politicians who are alarmed by the new twist Chamberlain has given to British foreign policy without first consulting parliament.

It was understood the Laborites have split over tabling a motion of censure against the government since party leaders, while anxious to flay Chamberlain's "betrayal" of Czechoslovakia, do not want to be dubbed the "war party."

Fourteen Liberal and Laborite members of parliament, Viscount Cecil of Chelwood and H. G. Wells were among the signatories of a memorandum protesting against Chamberlain's "sacrifice" of Czechoslovakia to Adolf Hitler.

Moving Forward

Marshall Field & Company presents here each day observations and opinions intended to be of interest and value to those it seeks to serve.

A NEW VOICE

By CALEB

LESS THAN fifteen years ago a youngster sat in rapt attention before an imposing array of glowing tubes and electric coils, a pair of headphones clamped over his ears. Clustered about him a dozen friends waited in silence, all eyes glued to the spot where the owner's fingers slowly turned half a dozen dials through minute calibrations.

In a moment the wrinkles on the enthusiast's brow disappeared — and a smile spread across his face. Beckoning a favored friend, he surrendered the earphones. The other listened carefully, and in a moment heard an obscure scratching sound which he identified as a radio broadcast. He was the first in town—save the enthusiast himself—to hear a radio broadcast received through vacuum tubes.

Today in a restaurant patrons continue their hum of conversation unconcernedly while the voice of a British statesman comes to them as he speaks across the Atlantic ocean and half a continent. So quickly does man become accustomed to miracles that this most amazing of them all leaves him wholly unmoved and unimpressed after only fifteen years! Fifteen years ago there were only homemade crystal sets and clumsy headphones. Five years ago writers for a great news gathering association were forbidden to mention the word "radio" in their dispatches. Today radio is everywhere—certain to play a major role in shaping history and building human destiny.

In our radio department a significant display was installed last week. There the best that radio has to offer was gathered—and what a change it represents. Distance, selection, tone quality—all have scored amazing advances in less than a single generation, and all are represented in our fourth annual Radio Show.

Like every triumph man records and every privilege he wins, radio brings new problems, responsibilities and duties. Because of it, the world shrinks from a vast globe peopled by isolated groups into a closely knit family, whose erstwhile private squabbles immediately become public property, enlisting the sympathies or opposition of those who fifteen years ago would hardly have been aware of them.

Not since the printing press has any invention so touched the human mind and changed the scope of its adventuring. It is a sobering thing to listen to it. Through superficial mistakes and obvious crudities, there speaks the one new and authentic voice since printing for the mass spread of information and knowledge—good or bad.

GIRL, 12, CHANGES SHOOTING STORY; FATHER ACCUSED

Charged with Murder in Wife's Death.

seemed to him sufficient at least to hold the engineer in jail until an inquest, set for 3 p. m. today, and for the murder charge.

Matter's last version last night was, "I don't know how it happened." Chief Mahoney was inclined to believe this was true. He reviewed the immediate circumstances of the shooting. Matter, suffering, had sent his wife to Dr. T. C. McDougal, the family physician, instructing her to get morphine to ease his pain.

Sends Another Preparation.

The doctor sent some other preparation. He said that he didn't want Matter to have more of the narcotic, that he might become an addict. The couple quarreled then. Matter went out and bought a bottle of gin. He consumed nearly a pint of the fiery liquid.

Matter is a graduate of the Carnegie Institute of Technology. His last work was with the Brunswick-Balke-Collender company, in their plant at Muskegon, Mich. Officials of the company said his salary was more than $500 a month. He left this place last March. The accident to his heel occurred in August.

In his cell last night Matter shivered as he drew his topcoat close about him. He asked whether an attorney could appear at the coroner's inquest to represent him, and was assured by an interviewer that this was possible.

Relatives Visit Him.

"I'm in this and I don't know how I got in it," he said. "I guess I'll just have to take it."

Miss Marian Matter of Harrisburg, Pa., and Mrs. Gene Markley of Detroit, sisters of the accused man, visited him in jail last night. They said relatives would take care of the three children. They also engaged an attorney, Arthur W. Sprague, to represent him. Sprague was not allowed to see his client last night.

Dr. McDougal told the police he had prescribed only a half grain of morphine daily to ease Matter's pain and had cut this off when the cast was removed from his foot last Wednesday.

Seek Minnesotan to Tell Him of His Father's Death

Commissioner Allman's office was requested last night to help find Edwin E. Winters, who is believed to be in Chicago, and to notify him of his father's death in Amboy, Minn. The request was made by the sherif of Mankato, Minn., who said that young Winters' mother needs him very much.

Buffalo, N. Y., Oct. 2.—(AP)—Steeplejack Theodore Rejewski, 35 years old, of Cicero, Ill., who seldom had worked less than ten stories in the air during the last few years, fell twelve feet today and was killed.

3 YOUTHS ADMIT HOLDUP; WOMAN IS SLAIN, 2 SHOT

Harrisburg, Ill., Oct. 2.—[Special.]—Three youths, who attempted to hold up a filling station owner in Texas City, near here, Friday night and killed his wife, confessed today to State's Attorney Lloyd K. Melton. Samuel Burns, the station owner, suffered a slight wound when one of the robbers opened fire without provocation. One of the robbers was shot accidentally by a companion.

Carl Trail, 18 years old; Charles Russell, 20, and Peter Mayfield, 20, all of Eldorado, confessed. Trail and Russell said Mayfield fired five shots from the only revolver they had. Mayfield said Russell did the shooting. The youths were captured after Trail was taken to a hospital in Alton, 150 miles away, for treatment. He was questioned there and named his companions.

Melton will ask for a murder indictment when a special grand jury is called this week to hear the case. Mrs. Burns, who was 60 years old, was buried today. Burns is recovering.

Judge Oscar Caplan Wins U. S. Bar Association Post

Judge Oscar S. Caplan of the Municipal court has been appointed by the American Bar association to its department of real property, probate and trust law, it was announced yesterday. Judge Caplan was assistant probate judge for six years and since then has edited three volumes on probate practice and procedure in Illinois, the last of which appeared last week. The three books have been given the commendation of the bar association.

PRESIDENT LEADS U.S. IN PRAYER FOR CONTINUED PEACE

Hyde Park, N. Y., Oct. 2.—[Special.]—President Roosevelt today led the nation in a prayer for the continuance of peace. He bowed his head under the tower of ivy-clad St. James Episcopal church, in which he was baptized.

The President came to church for communion soon after his arrival from Washington. With him were Senator Robert J. Bulkley [D., O.] and Bulkley's daughter, Katherine, who is a student at Vassar college.

From church Mr. Roosevelt turned to politics and discussed the political situation in Ohio with Senator Bulkley.

WELFARE INVESTIGATOR NAMED.

Sycamore, Ill., Oct. 2.—[Special.]—Mrs. Hazel Dooley of De Kalb, wife of James Dooley, formerly of Sycamore, has been named investigator for the De Kalb county welfare department, it was announced today by Mrs. Bernice Penzotti, county superintendent.

2 STATES GUARD AGAINST EVASION OF BLOOD TESTS

Although eight states now require pre-marital blood tests to block the spread of syphilis and gonorrhea, only two of them—Wisconsin and Rhode Island—have taken steps to prevent evasion of their laws. This was announced yesterday after a survey by the Council of State Governments, with headquarters in Chicago. Rhode Island requires that residents who wed outside the state, but return there to live, submit to blood tests within six months.

The Wisconsin attorney general has ruled that residents with venereal diseases who wed outside the state to evade the law will be subject to prosecution. The other six states that require blood tests before marriage are New Jersey, New York, Connecticut, Illinois, Michigan, and New Hampshire whose law became effective Saturday.

JAPANESE POUND SECOND LINE OF CHINESE DEFENSE

Attack on 35 Mile Front 90 Miles from Hankow.

SHANGHAI, Oct. 2.—(AP)—Japanese reported today they were attacking the Chinese second line of defenses protecting Hankow, about ninety miles down the Yangtze river from the military capital of China.

The defenses were said to be manned by thirty Chinese divisions covering a thirty-five mile front.

Fierce fighting went on along other fronts with stubborn Chinese lines holding firm in the face of intense Japanese bombardments.

Drop Bombs and Leaflets.

CHENGCHOW, China, Oct. 2.—(AP)—Japanese air raiders alternated in dropping bombs and pamphlets here yesterday—the latter warning twenty American, British, and Italian missionaries to leave immediately.

Chengchow, the junction point on the Lunghai and Peking-Hankow railway, has been raided daily by the Japanese in recent weeks after a long period of quiet.

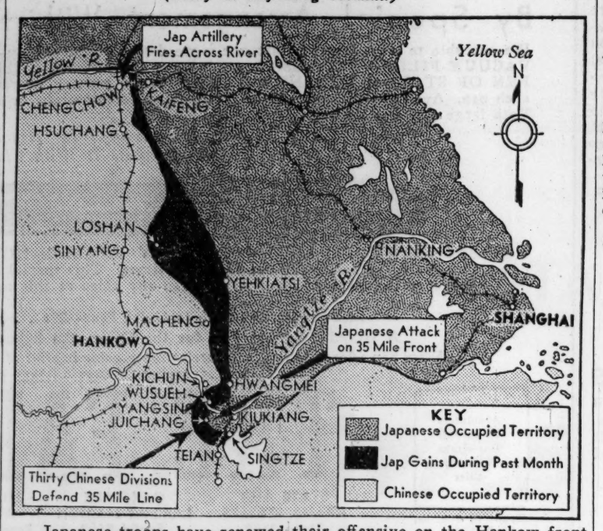
It is here that the Japanese are attempting to reach the Peking-Hankow railway in order to launch a drive down the line toward Hankow, 300 miles to the south.

Japanese artillery on the north bank of the Yellow river has been hurling shells into towns immediately north of Chengchow.

Chinese military officials said they did not believe the Japanese aerial and artillery attacks meant a resumption of a general offensive in this area, but merely an attempt to divert their attention from more vital fronts.

Japs Within 90 Miles of Hankow

(Story in adjoining column.)



Japanese troops have renewed their offensive on the Hankow front where they have made their hardest won gains in the last month. The greatest gain was made by the column advancing toward Sinyang and the Peking-Hankow railway. Attacks on Chengchow also were renewed.

5 SAVED AT SEA BY LINER FROM BURNING VESSEL

New York, Oct. 2.—(AP)—The steamship American Banker of the United States Lines reported today the rescue at sea of the crew of five from the burning schooner Pioneer, loaded with lumber and bound for Barbados.

Capt. Alfred M. Moore of the American Banker radioed that the rescue took place 500 miles from New York. His ship sailed Friday from New York for London. Moore reported H. G. Milton of Norfolk, Va., master and owner of the Pioneer, and his four crewmen were uninjured.

The coast guard cutter Ponchartrain, on patrol off Point Judith, was sent to the scene to sink the burning derelict as a menace to navigation.

WPA Leaner Breaks Arm When Saw Horse Tips

Revere, Mass., Oct. 2.—[Special.]—Herbert McLean, a WPA worker, broke his arm here today on the Dale street highway project when the saw horse against which he was leaning tipped over.

PEACE WILL COME BY ARMS VICTORY, FRANCO ASSERTS

New Action by Spanish Rebels Expected.

HENDAYE, France [At the Spanish Frontier], Oct. 2.—(AP)—A proclamation by Generalissimo Francisco Franco promising rebel Spain a "victorious peace" was believed today to indicate impending new action on the quiet civil war fronts.

Franco broadcast a belligerent address to his supporters yesterday, the second anniversary of his accession to the post of chief of state in rebel Spain.

"We can call what has just happened on German soil 'the battle of Munich,'" Franco declared, "and the price of this victory has been peace.

"I declare that with the protection of heaven and the force of our arms there will soon arrive also for us an early day of victorious peace."

Fight in North Catalonia.

Heavy artillery fire was heard along the northern Spanish border near Bourg-Madame, France, late today from the direction of Tremp.

Government advices indicated a counterattack had been launched on the upper Catalonian front between Tremp and Sort in an effort to offset rebel pressure on the lower Catalonian front in the Ebro river valley.

Single Plane Bombs Barcelona.

BARCELONA, Spain, Oct. 2.—(AP)—A single rebel war plane bombed the port section tonight in the first raid on Barcelona since the Czechoslovak crisis commanded attention in Europe. A few bombs were dropped but no casualties were reported. Fifty-five rebel planes were reported to have engaged twenty-five government planes in a battle over the Ebro valley.

Italians Demobilizing.

[Copyright: 1938: By the New York Times.]

BURGOS, Spain, Oct. 2.—A report that 500 Italian airmen were being withdrawn from rebel Spain was immediately discounted in well informed circles here today, but it is no secret that one infantry division of the Italian "Legionario" is actually demobilizing and soon will go home.

British Miners to Support 1,000 Children in Spain

LONDON, Oct. 2.—(AP)—Arthur Horner, president of the South Wales Miners' federation, announced today that British miners would support 1,000 destitute children, victims of the civil war in government Spain, for seven years. The miners have subscribed $300,000 to maintain homes and provide food.

Robert Armstrong, member of the executive board of the union, the Amalgamated Association of Street and Electric Railway and Motor Coach Employés, outlined the terms of the contract to the men. Those receiving less than 50 cents an hour are to retain the old pay scale. Others are to receive the old scale, but are to take 20 per cent in receiver's certificates for sixty days, and 15 per cent in receiver's certificates for the next thirty days.

The agreement is to continue in effect until May 31, 1939, but is subject to adjustment of the pay scale after three months.

Avert 15 Per Cent Pay Cut.

The terms are not markedly different from those offered the men at the time they struck. At that time they were asked to accept a 15 per cent pay cut to keep the road in operation, and were to receive raises if the revenues of the road justified them. Armstrong said, however, that the Amalgamated now was sole bargaining agent, and that an arbitration board would be set up to handle disputes.

The contract will be presented to Federal Judge James H. Wilkerson tomorow for his approval.

DEBATE? NO! BUT KNOX SCHEDULES LYONS AND LUCAS

Students and alumni of Knox college at Galesburg, Ill., will listen to a novel celebration next Friday when the eightieth anniversary of the Lincoln-Douglas debate in that city is observed.

This year's major party nominees for the United States senate, Richard J. Lyons, Republican, and Scott W. Lucas, Democrat, will speak from the same platform, just as Lincoln and Douglas did, but they will not debate. Lyons will make a nonpolitical speech. Then Lucas will make a nonpolitical speech.

That program is the result of Congressman Lucas' insistence that he will not actually engage in debate with his opponent. The college, months ago, sent invitations to both candidates to debate. Lyons accepted at once. Eventually Lucas agreed to speak on condition that both speeches be nonpolitical and noncontroversial and that Lyons speak first.

Out of consideration for Knox, Lyons will go through with the program, but he plans today to issue a third challenge to Lucas to debate with him the evening after they make their joint appearance in Galesburg.

CATCH ESCAPED PRISONER.

Chester, Ill., Oct. 2.—[Special.]—Oscar Browning, an honor farm Negro trusty, was caught at Union City, Tenn., yesterday. He escaped Dec. 5, 1936, having been admitted from Saline county on April 14, 1934. A former parolee, he was serving one to ten years for larceny.

BANDIT WRECKS HIS CAR IN WILD POLICE CHASE

A thrilling police chase of a bandit car down Lake Shore drive and into Lincoln park ended early today when the bandit crashed his stolen car into a pole in Stockton drive, off Wisconsin street, in the park.

The robber, Robert Castro, 21 years old, 1636 Burling street, had earlier stolen the car from Joseph Greenberg, 1954 Berteau avenue, when Greenberg stopped for a light at Lincoln and Fullerton avenues. Then he drove north. He was next seen speeding south in Lake Shore drive, at Addison street, without lights, by Lincoln Park Policemen Robert Oman and Clarence Welch.

They chased him. The two cars raced nearly 80 miles an hour at times. Castro turned west at Webster avenue and south in Stockton drive. A few seconds later he smashed into the pole. The car was virtually torn apart. He apparently escaped serious injury. Policemen Oman and Welch seized him, and found a loaded pistol in his pocket. He was identified as the bandit by Greenberg.

Arms Expenditures in '38 Estimated at 17 Billions

Washington, D. C., Oct. 2.—(AP)—The Foreign Policy association reported today that world armament expenditures in 1938 would total more than 17 billion dollars, a "phenomenal increase" from the 4 billion expenditure of 1933. Every industrial nation is confronted with the question of how long its national economy can stand such expenditures, says an association report, which added that recent history demonstrates huge armament spending led almost inevitably to dictatorship.

CAT BANDIT ASKS PAROLE; TERROR REIGN RECALLED

Robber of Women in 1927 Up for Release.

On the parole board's October docket yesterday there appeared, among others, two names that attracted immediate attention at the detective bureau.

"William Edd Baker," said Chief John L. Sullivan, "why, that's the Cat Bandit. He terrorized hundreds of women and robbed forty or fifty or them before he was captured in 1927.

"And here's another one, Edwin Brethauer. An innocent man served four months in prison for one of Brethauer's robberies."

"The Cat" was a major police problem. For months scores of extra policemen were assigned to the Summerdale district to seek him.

The Cat robbed only women. He would spring out of the darkness at them—thereby acquiring the nickname.

When arrested he admitted robbing "forty or fifty" women but there were nearly two hundred complaints against him.

The arrest of Brethauer, which brought about the exoneration and release from prison of John Long, who was 26 years old, single and had no previous police record, was on suspicion of another crime. Brethauer was taken into custody Aug. 29, 1934.

Long had been convicted and sent to prison in May. He was identified as the companion of George Wilch in a robbery.

After the mistake became known the same witnesses saw Long and Brethauer together and admitted they had erred in identifying Long.

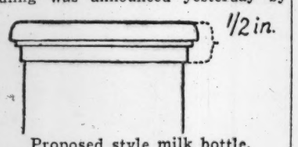
ROB OPERATOR OF WALKATHON AND HIS WIFE

Police yesterday were seeking two bandits who early in the day kidnaped and robbed Ray Dunlap, operator of a walkathon at 4812 North Clark street, and his wife, Mae, of $560 and a $3,300 diamond ring. The Dunlaps and a friend, Mrs. Richard Layer, 4727 Malden street, were entering a taxicab at Wilson avenue and Broadway when the bandits took Mrs. Dunlap's purse containing $550 and forced her husband to enter the cab alone.

As he did so he slipped the ring from his pocket and hid it in the seat cushions. The gunmen beat him when he refused to tell its hiding place. Then they forced Dunlap and the driver, Arthur Dickerson, out of the taxi at Belle Plaine avenue and Paulina street. Police later found the machine abandoned. The ring was gone.

DRIPLESS MILK BOTTLE LATEST IN WAR ON GERMS

Development of a new milk bottle that will permit more hygienic handling was announced yesterday by



Proposed style milk bottle.

Dr. Lloyd Arnold, bacteriologist of the University of Illinois college of medicine.

The new bottle has a narrow, recessed lip. It will require a smaller cap. The drip of milk when it is poured from the bottle is found to be but a fraction of the drip from the standard bottles now in use.

will be made soon, Paul Potter, executive secretary of the Associated Milk Dealers, said. This organization is made up of the major dairies in Chicago. The development of a new bottle was made at the request of the dealers. Mr. Potter said that some dealers fear that the narrow lip bottle may chip easily, thus being impractical.

Stevenson Heads Bar's Civil Rights Committee

Henry B. Chandler, president of the Chicago Bar association, yesterday appointed Adlai E. Stevenson as chairman of the association's newly formed committee on civil rights. The committee, which has a membership of twenty-nine, will devote its energies to preserving the American right of free speech. Formation of the committee was one of the plans Mr. Chandler announced when he was elected last June.

Benjamin Franklin's contribution to medical science was the invention of the bifocal eyeglasses which he devised primarily for his own convenience.

LUMBERMAN PUTS ON FREE CIRCUS FOR 5,000 KIDDIES

Drawn by the lure of a free circus, complete with free pop, popcorn, peanuts, and candy, 5,000 children yesterday stormed the lumber yard of Louis L. Meitus at 2221 South Ashland avenue.

Meitus, who got circus fever a few weeks ago when he went to Sheboygan, Wis., to buy a pony from a dismantled circus and ended with the complete menagerie, disclaimed sponsorship of the free fête, pointing out that his son, Ivan, 6 years old, and his daughter, Elaine, 4, were the hosts.

SCIENCE TACKLES EVILS PLACED AT DOOR OF ALCOHOL

Problems of Wet and Dry Eras to Be Dissected.

New York, Oct. 2.—[Special.]—The American Association for the Advancement of Science believes prohibition was a failure and that repeal is no solution to the liquor problem. Consequently the association is going to try to do something about it through its recently formed Research Council on Problems of Alcohol.

The research council of 100 scientists, educators, civic, and industrial leaders represents the entire nation. The council has started a thorough, unbiased and scientific investigation of the problems related to the control of alcoholic beverages. It will seek a solution through research and education.

"Whether the findings are favorable or unfavorable to the use of alcoholic beverages, they will be published without prejudice," the council promised.

Dr. Karl M. Bowman, director of psychiatry in Bellevue hospital, New York, and professor of psychiatry in New York university, is chairman of the council's executive committee of fifteen, ten of whom are scientists.

Prohibition Unenforceable.

"Prohibition was not successful," Dr. Bowman said in outlining the basis on which the council will attack the problem. "A large army of law enforcement officers with millions of dollars to spend was unable from 1920 to 1933 to prohibit the sale and use of alcoholic beverages. Repeal has not been successful. Excesses and abuses are evident to all. Under both prohibition and repeal, alcoholic beverages when used unwisely have caused inefficiency, disease, and death.

"At least two evils are recognized by both the wets and drys. These are alcoholism and highway accidents due to the use of alcohol. In many other aspects of the alcohol problem, there is a chaos of opinion. There is danger of hasty and unwaranted decisions in respect to legal control of the liquor business.

"It has become evident that nothing can be accomplished by the application of force. If we are to find a way out, it can be only through the development of a complete factual basis on which we can build some effective plan of action. The main objective of the council is the development of such facts. The secondary aim is to make these facts available to the public in a way that they will do the most good."

Steer Clear of Propaganda.

A statement of the council makes it clear that conclusions will not be based upon assumptions, that the council will not engage in propaganda, lobby for control of the liquor business, nor take part in political campaigns.

Dr. Bowman said scientists believe that if adequate factual data are made available and discussed fully without heat or prejudice, by men and women of intelligence, integrity, and leadership, the right solution to the problems of alcohol may be reached.

Since the study is to be purely scientific, the association carefully has chosen members of the council from among scientists, educators, business, and civic leaders, so located as to represent the nation.

Among those from middle western states chosen to the council are William F. Ogburn, professor of sociology, and Arthur H. Compton, professor of physics, all from the University of Chicago, and Thomas R. Crowder, director of the department of sanitation and surgery for the Pullman company.

Delicate Situation

William Powell and Myrna Loy in a scene from "The Thin Man."

Hollywood, Oct. 2.—(AP)—Nora Charles thinks it won't look quite proper—and what will the neighbors say?—to turn up with a new husband so soon after the baby's born. And Nick won't be Nora's husband any more unless the studio and he settle their differences.

Which is another way of saying that M. G. M. is temporarily stymied on its next "Thin Man" picture.

William Powell was the eccentric detective in two pictures of the "Thin Man" series and Myrna Loy was Nora, his wife. In the film series, a little Charles is on the way.

Powell and his studio, it became known in Hollywood today, are at loggerheads over his new contract. The studio feels that because Powell soon will be devoting considerable of his time to a radio program, a salary tilt is out of order. For business as well as for sentimental reasons, Miss Loy doesn't want to appear in the forthcoming picture [delayed heretofore by Powell's illness] unless Powell is cast with her.

THOUSANDS SEE DAREDEVILS OF SKIES PERFORM

Several thousand persons gathered yesterday at Lansing airport, Burnham avenue and 190th street, for an afternoon of flying thrills. Daring pilots—both women and men—engaged in speed contests, mock combat, bomb dropping exhibitions, and skywriting.

Among the stars were Capt. Arthur J. Davis, a pioneer army test pilot, and his troupe, and members of the Chicago Girls' Flying club, including Mary Sim, its president. The exhibition was under the direction of Steve O'Connor and Ben Orloff.

BEGINNING TODAY.... EVERY TRAFFIC SIGN RECOMMENDS A 1939 PACKARD!

Familiar highway markers prove Packard's exclusive T&T ENGINE and FIFTH SHOCK ABSORBER change behavior of motor cars

To discover the car that offers you the greatest thrill for 1939, hurry to your Packard dealer's and take the traffic sign test . . .

Four new improvements make Packard's TRAFFIC & TRAVEL engine the most efficient motor car engine, at both touring and traffic speeds, that Packard has ever built!

At a traffic light, Packard's T&T engine will give you still another thrill. It's amazingly agile! You'll get away faster—usually first.

Here you'll discover new riding ease! For Packard, thanks to its exclusive FIFTH shock absorber, now becomes the first car ever to smother cross-wise road shocks!

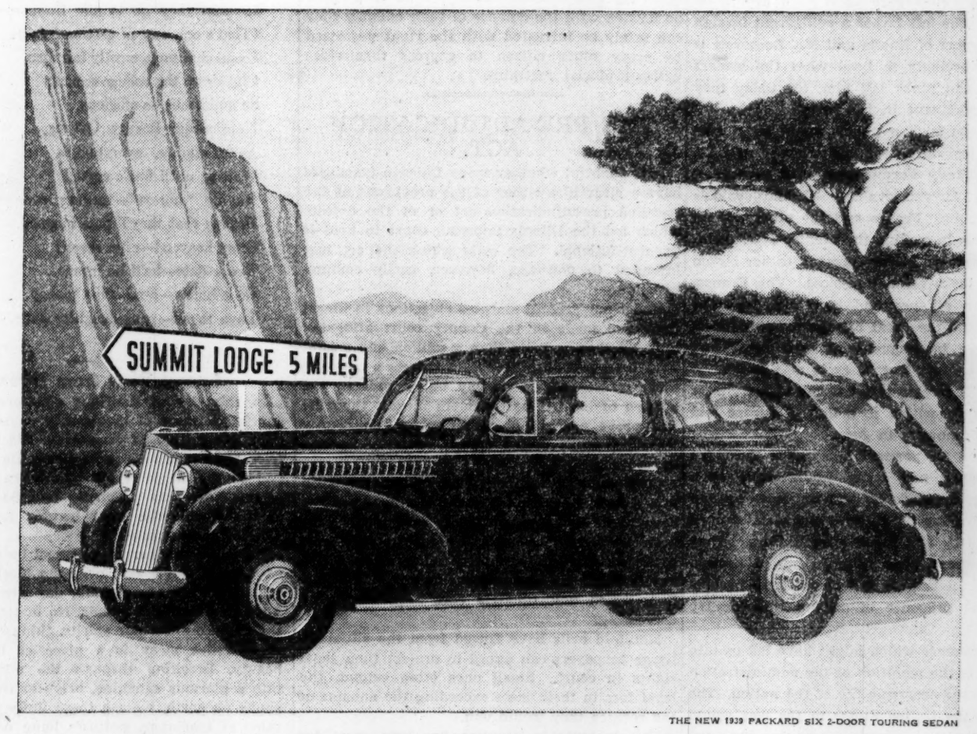
This fifth shock absorber also increases steering accuracy. Rear-end sidestepping is checked. You can feel this added steering security.

On slippery roads, your Packard rides free from those lateral shocks which, like the pressure of some giant hand, have encouraged your car to skid!

Shifting gears is now incredibly smooth! Packard gears are now in constant mesh—result of the Packard UNIMESH transmission, a design borrowed from the Packard Twelve.



THE NEW 1939 PACKARD SIX 2-DOOR TOURING SEDAN

Your pride in a Packard will be deeper than your usual "new car pride". For your car has the most beautiful lines in motoring—the smart lines that immediately identify the car you're driving.

And here's more good news! . . .

HERE ARE two more brilliant Packard "headlines" for 1939 . . . FIRST—an improved steering column shift—the Packard Handishift—is now standard equipment on both the Packard Six and Packard One Twenty. This new shift puts your gear lever up under the steering wheel. Nothing new to learn: in fact, it is definitely easier to operate!

SECOND—now available at additional cost on both of these Packards is an ingenious device called the Packard Econo-Drive. It is one of the greatest boons to pleasure and pocketbook ever put on a car! This new and perfected fourth-speed gear works with a foot-touch at speeds over 30, and lets your engine run 27.8% slower—much quieter and smoother. Saves on gas and oil, as well as engine wear; makes driving at cruising speeds a new and delightful experience.

THE NEW 1939

PACKARD SIX and 120*

A PERIL AVERTED.

The ending of the Czech crisis without war means, for America, that a great peril has been averted.

If war had come the danger of our involvement in it would have been grave. In 1914 and, indeed, in 1917, there was little popular pressure except along the Atlantic seaboard for American participation. Woodrow Wilson was elected as the man who had kept us out of war and his implied pledge was that he would continue to do so. His opponent was anything but a war hawk. If Mr. Hughes had favored war he would have been snowed under instead of being narrowly defeated. But, by way of contrast, in 1938 there are powerful elements in this country which believe that England and France with Russia should have taken up arms against the Fascist dictators and that America should have joined the so-called democratic front in the trenches.

The left wing in this country as in most others is pro-war because it is pro-Russian. Mr. Roosevelt has come increasingly to depend upon his communists and semi-communists for political support. He is seeking to purge his party of its right wing elements and in doing so has only increased his dependence upon such groups as the C. I. O. The left favors a belligerent foreign policy in support of Russia and Mr. Roosevelt is destined increasingly to heed what the leaders of the reds and pinks tell him, for today they are almost dominant in his party.

How perilous such a policy would be is suggested by a look at post-Munich Europe. Russia has been isolated. Formerly she had two allies, France and Czechoslovakia. Czechoslovakia's strength is gone. France and the other powers ignored Russia in making the Munich settlement. England has clasped Nazi Germany to her bosom and France looks on and rejoices. The Franco-Czech-Russian alliance had been aimed at the Nazis; today all the great European powers west of Russia are in league with each other and presumably against Russia, as is also Japan. A pro-communist foreign policy in the United States would mean opposition to a united Europe and the dominant powers in Asia.

The demand for participation in the European conflict—if war had come—would have been reinforced by demands for war on Germany and on Hitler from various cultural and racial groups in this country and their sympathizers. They could easily have been whipped into a passion over wrongs in Europe and would have become an important influence in driving this country to war.

A third influence which might have led us into the conflict is the ambition of the administration to dominate the economic life of the nation. The entrance of the United States in the war would have provided the occasion for taking over the factories and other means of production on the excuse that national necessity forced the seizure. Confiscation in time of peace is difficult, and the effort to put it over piecemeal, though persistent, has not been markedly successful except in certain industries. War would have made it possible to achieve the goal overnight.

We have been spared all this and more. American minded men and women may take encouragement to fight any further interference by this country in Europe and to drive communism, a European creation, out of the United States.

THE DEFENSE OF BUSINESS.

Few business men in the past have needed to be told to mind their own business. They have had little time to spend on anything else. The manifold problems of operating a company successfully, whether a large one or a small one, have absorbed most of the time and energies of business executives.

The vicious attacks by politicians have given new meaning to the admonition in recent years. Demagogs have found it profitable to smear business with untruths and distortions of truth. If this false picture is permitted to stand unchallenged free enterprise may be destroyed and with it the most fruitful economic system the world has ever known and the best hope which the common man has ever had of an advancing standard of living.

As Mr. Tom Girdler said the other day in addressing the National Industrial Advertisers' association in Cleveland, the business man must present his case to the public, through advertising, if he wishes to check the onslaughts of the politicians. "Industry," said Mr. Girdler, "has the obligation of proving to the country that it has the public welfare at heart as much, if not more, than the political demagog. Industry has an impressive record of vast and solid achievement. That story in all its ramifications should be told by every industry in and out of season. . . . Business has to sell far more than merely the product which it makes. It has also to sell its contribution to our standard of living, to employment, and to economic stability and its contribution to the general progress of the community in which it is located."

This is sound advice. The business man who in these days proposes to mind his own business cannot afford to neglect the suggestion.

MAJ. GEN. MOSELEY'S RIGHTS.

Maj. Gen. George Van Horn Moseley, after some forty years of distinguished service to his country, reached the age of retirement a few days ago and resumed private life. As is customary in such circumstances, he read a farewell address to his command. He called attention to the trend throughout the world toward dictatorship. Our country may go the same way, he warned, if we permit more and more of the voters to become wards of the government.

This declaration infuriated Secretary of War Woodring, who characterized it as a flagrantly disloyal statement, reflecting on the commander in chief. Mr. Woodring attributed what he called Gen. Moseley's bad taste to pique at failing to receive appointment as chief of staf of the army. Gen. Moseley replied with dignity that he had not been eligible for the appointment as he and every one else knew.

Mr. Woodring and his fellow New Deal politicians can dish it out but they can't take it. In this instance Mr. Woodring's rage served to call the widest attention to an address which otherwise might have received little notice, well reasoned and well expressed though it was.

Gen. Moseley today is a private citizen and as such he has the right of every citizen to speak his mind about public affairs. When he entered the military service he voluntarily surrendered his privilege of commenting freely, but now that he has retired his right is restored without important qualification. It would be strange indeed if a man who has given the forty best years of his life to the service of his country and has proved his devotion on a thousand occasions in war and peace should be denied the right to counsel his countrymen against what he regards as a dangerous tendency in government.

In this country the civil authority is supreme, as it must be if all danger of a military despotism is to be avoided. This principle is thoroughly ingrained in the military forces and is not in question in the Moseley case, although Mr. Woodring would like to have it appear that it is. Gen. Moseley is no man on horseback and, in fact, the whole purpose of his address was precisely to save the country from the danger of dictatorship.

It is possible to gag the military so effectively that the country suffers harm. The officers of the army and navy are experts in their field and what they think would often prove of great value if it could be generally known. In any event the rules governing men still in the service have no application to men in retirement. There is no good reason for depriving the country of the mature thought of retired officers and every reason for encouraging them to discuss public affairs in public. In England we find such men as Maj. Gen. Fuller writing voluminously and to the great benefit of his country on a great variety of subjects. Our retired officers have at least an equal right to express themselves. If they could be trusted with the defense of their country they can safely be intrusted with the right possessed by every other citizen to express themselves without official restraint.

THE PRE-ADJUDICATION ACT.

It is doubtful whether many Chicago taxpayers have a clear idea either of the provisions of the so-called pre-adjudication act or of the defects which led the Illinois Supreme court to hold it unconstitutional. The evils which the act was intended to end are, however, easily comprehensible.

Under our present statutes objections to illegal taxes are made in the County court after tax bills, numbering more than a million and a half, have been sent out. To obtain redress a taxpayer must refuse to pay, or pay under protest, the portion of his tax he considers illegal; then file and prove a legal objection when the county treasurer seeks a lien on his property for the unpaid tax.

Cook county's tax collection system has been in a chaotic state for ten years. Delinquency has been high. Local governments as a result have been pressed for revenue. Frequently they have exceeded their legal authority to levy taxes. There has resulted an abnormal volume of tax litigation, which unfortunately does not seem to be decreasing.

Manifold evils have flowed from the situation. Large taxpayers can afford to protect their legal rights in court. Small ones often cannot, the legal fees in their cases exceeding the amount of the rebates they would win.

This inequitable situation has been meat for publicity seeking judges and taxing officials. They have sponsored projects to "relieve the small taxpayer," always after the disputed tax money has been spent. Apparent savings in one year have usually been wiped out by levies the following year to meet the expenditures already made. The taxpayers haven't saved much in the long run, but their political saviors have reaped a lot of unearned credit.

The evils did not end here. Tens of thousands of changes, ordered by the courts after bills had been mailed, made a mess of tax records and kept the offices which maintain them in a constant hurly burly. Taxpayers, seeing that neighbors who failed to pay their bills were frequently rewarded with reductions, withheld their own payments in following years. Hence the high tax delinquency.

The purpose of the pre-adjudication act was that objections to illegal levies should be filed with and passed on by the County court before taxes were extended and individual bills made out. Thus, in theory, if a tax rate were found illegal, taxpayers large and small would share equitably in the reduction. Presumably there would be no hope of further tax cuts after the bills were sent out. Taxing offices would be saved endless confusion and taxpayers would be encouraged to pay their bills in full by the assurance that they would save nothing by withholding payments.

The objection of the Supreme court, on the grounds of constitutionality, seems one which can be remedied. Some able tax lawyers, however, are not certain that the act, if put in effect, would accomplish all that was hoped of it. Some of them think that existing statutes offer even better relief through injunctive action.

This, however, is certain: Until Cook county finds some method of preventing public officials from muddling up tax collections with phoney "help the taxpayer" projects, designed primarily to perpetuate themselves in office, our tax muddle will continue.

END OF FAMOUS HUNT.

Our severest critic [but not what you think] has told us: "One more line about wooden Indians, and I scream!" We have made a vow of abstinence and have been finding it difficult to keep, for the contribs are reluctant to abandon the hunt. "There are also two in the Chicago Historical society's collections," writes Hildegarde Crosby, supervisor of the Index of American Design for the project. "One of them is now on exhibition, alongside Stanley Mazur's watercolor record of it, in the Art institute. We have located sixty others in the state outside Chicago. . . . Perhaps some day you would like to go hunting for those rarer creatures—the Dolly Vardens, Sir Walter Rafeighs, Punches, Yankees, Forty-niners, Caribbean chiefs, Admirals, etc."

So good-by, wooden Indians!
Don't come back to me;
You made some pretty hunting but—
There are other good fish in the sea.

FRESHMAN CO-ED WRITES HOME.

Dearest Mother, Dad and Brother,
This brief note to you I'm sending
This inscription just description
Of the college I'm attending.
Lovely places, handsome faces,
Boys who are a trifle naughty,
Campus big shots, stars and whatnots
(Little men—but O so haughty),
Blonds and redheads—nice but deadheads;
Slow to study, quick to play,
In class they go to the front row
(That's one way of getting "A").
Social chairmen, mostly fair men,
Clutter up the college scenes;
So ambitious, so officious
Nominating Beauty Queens.
As for studies, everybody's
Waiting until finals come,
Buying "horses"—reading courses,
Hoping that they'll pass in some.
O my heaven!—after seven!
I've a date—he'll be insane.
Be a honey—send some money.
Love to all—your daughter Jane.

In this day of delirious dictators, etc., your gentle professor of inefficiency pauses to reflect upon the beauty of cosmology. His is a far cry from the ubiquitous radio voice. He would take you on the magic carpet to the beautiful places of this heaven in which we live. So up and out of the world with your mentor for this brief view of contentment.

On our magic carpet, powered by four motors, we take off for a trip over the Meringue mountains. Pick out any summer day when the sky is filled with cumulus clouds. No matter how drear the day, how low our spirits, think that but two short miles away is a place of incomparable beauty. Breaking through the mist of clouds into a glorious sunshine, brighter than sun ever shone on earth, we see these fluffy white mountains of meringue, nature's icing on her sweetest creation. They are of an undreamed solidity, range after range towering ahead, with mountain passes between, fleecy valleys, and awful chasms through which we have fleeting glimpses of the checkerboard map of the world below.

The azure above is of deeper hue. The ever changing, evanescent hills ahead are edged with the colors of the rainbow. As we go higher toward the setting sun, not deigning to thread the passes, but plunging through the foamy white hilltops, we emerge into a new world of placidity and contentment. Storm and strife may rage below. Who cares? We are to see the sunset from Nirvana. E. L. Beckwith.

TO A COAT OF ARMS.

Carved in the weathered stone of yonder wall,
A coat of arms looks down through ivy's lace
Upon the street's discordant, frenzied pace.
The cadences of commerce rise and fall,
Responding to the shrill, commanding call
Of whistles, and, as lights direct the race,
While engines plunge, each driver's stolid face
Reflects the tense monotony of all.

Cool symbol of the past, you well remind
Us with our nervous cavalcades of cars,
Our battered fenders and our traffic scars,
Though days of pageantry are far behind,
We need the ministry of knighthood's flower,—
Forbearance in this crowded hour!

American Language Nugget.

There is no more useful addition to our language than the word "jaloppy," but where did it come from? All I know is that there was a time when we had to use a lot of adjectives to describe an old rundown automobile, whereas now the one word does the trick. Can't the sleuths of the Line track it down to its origin? D. D. K.

The Linemaster will stop this search in its tracks. "Jaloppy" is a corruption of the Italian adjective "dilapidata."

INFECTED FLEAS SPREAD BUBONIC PLAGUE.

EVERY little while—as we look at the illness figures of our states, cities, and villages—we congratulate ourselves that we are pushing backward—gradually—the enemies of human life—when suddenly some new and unheralded affliction comes upon the scene. Poliomyelitis [infantile paralysis] is a relatively recent invader of our continent. Encephalitis, likewise, was practically unknown a generation or two ago. We are now cautioned that the old adage, "the price of safety is eternal vigilance," is particularly apropos because the infection known as bubonic plague—essentially an oriental disease transmitted by the rat flea—has made important inroads among the wild rodents in some of our western states. Ground squirrels, chipmunks, and prairie dogs can harbor the germ-carrying insect.

Long known as a severe, death-dealing malady, every thought of plague has practically died out except in certain ports of India and other Asiatic localities. But we have only to remind ourselves that severe epidemics have occurred fairly recently in some of the Latin American states and in certain parts of Mexico. Occasionally sporadic outbreaks have been noted along our own Gulf of Mexico, in San Francisco, and in Los Angeles. Fortunately the affliction can be recognized quickly and its appearance may occasion a rat exterminating campaign which will prevent its circulation.

The disorder is caused by a microbe called Pasteurella pestis, which lives in the bodies of infected rodents and is communicated to man by fleas which have in turn become diseased from feeding on the rat.

The typical attack consists in a painful inflammation [swelling] of the lymph glands in the groin, beneath the arm, or along the side of the neck. From two to ten days following a bite the patient feels "under the weather" with some headache, dizziness, and grippy symptoms. Within a day or two the temperature may be 103 to 104 degrees with periodical chills. Later, pain at the site of inflammation is quite marked, mental dullness and prostration are pronounced, and—on attempting to walk—the patient is observed to stagger as though he were intoxicated. In favorable cases the fever drops each morning and tends to disappear gradually. When severe, however, the run may be long with great emaciation.

Another variety is that which is characterized by inflammation of the respiratory passages. Bronchial pneumonia develops and the spread of this form may be quite rapid as the sputum may be heavily charged with plague germs and droplets from coughing may disperse the organisms.

We should recall that while the bite of the infected flea is the common mode of conveyance, nevertheless, one who cares for an individual with the pneumonia type may contract the disease merely by breathing in particles of sputum which have been expectorated.

At the present time it is known that infected ground squirrels exist over a wide territory including not only California but certain sections of Nevada, Montana, Idaho, and Utah. Because we have had but few human cases in the last two or three years, we have considered but little the possibility of its dissemination. Nevertheless, rats coming through on transcontinental express freights may carry enough germs to contaminate well animals in other localities.

Just as every one should report to the health authorities should rabbits in a given area be observed to be sick with a great many deaths among their wild kind—as indicating the presence of tularemia [rabbit fever]—so if squirrels and gophers are found dead or dying in appreciable numbers in any community, the United States public health service should be notified. The danger lies in the fact that fleas—on leaving a dead animal may find a live one—or even a human being.

MASSAGE NOT A REDUCER.

A. M. S. writes: I have been a masseur for more than forty years and have a great many patients who are enthusiastic in their praise of massage. I have many overweight patients who feel that I should be able to reduce them, but I tell them truthfully that I can slenderize only their purses.

REPLY.

Your position is correct. Massage is one of our most valuable therapeutic agents, but it cannot take off fat except from the one who is giving the treatment.

RARE OR WELL DONE.

H. M. F. writes: I have always understood that meat may be eaten "rare," while you maintain it should be well cooked. What to do?

REPLY.

It is largely a matter of taste. On the other hand well done meats, particularly pork, safeguard one against parasites.

NOT FOR THE PRESENT.

Mrs. E. H. writes: My 3 year old son has tonsils which are enlarged, but not diseased. In your opinion, is it necessary to have them removed at this time?

REPLY.

I would vote "no" at this time. If they interfere with breathing, however, removal should be considered.

ESTATE.

Chicago, Oct. 1.—[Legal Friend of the People.]—My sister is the sole heir to my estate, which is comparatively small. I had my lawyer draw up the will and name her as executor.

In the event of my death, and she is unable or does not care to act as executor, [1] is it lawful to have the lawyer act in that capacity, that is, to attend to the important business and have her sign the papers?

2. Would this method be less expensive than to appoint a co-executor or administrator? G. R.

1. The court would appoint an administrator with the will annexed. It is not likely that the lawyer would be appointed unless the will so provides. If there is no close relative, presumably, the public administrator would have to act.

2. It is generally regarded as undesirable to leave the affairs in such shape that the public administrator will step in.

PROBLEM OF BLIGHTED AREAS.

Chicago, Sept. 30.—Regarding the "blighted areas" and the latest proposed "public service building corporations." The proponents claim that by rebuilding large areas it will be possible to eliminate the slums, but a little consideration will show the fallacy of the plan.

Assuming that such housing authority has been given the legal authority to condemn land and build habitations and that a project embracing, say, a square mile of land just west of the river, on both sides of Madison street, has been selected.

Let us assume further that in this district there are numerous areas which are designated as "blighted" and that 25,000 people reside in this square mile, people of the group described by the President as being "underfed and barely existing" through lack of means to secure adequate clothing and housing. Undoubtedly many of these families are existing on $55 or less a month, and from necessity are forced to live in dilapidated buildings.

The housing authority having acquired the land in question, the people living there are forced to move to adjacent sections having a like rental value. Eventually the district is rebuilt and apartments are offered for rent at, say, from $50 to $100 a month. It is evident that the people who moved out of this section originally will not move back.

No matter how many of these housing projects are completed, one-half of the population of Chicago will continue to live in blighted areas. What this housing authority actually can and will do is merely to shift blighted areas from one section to another.

The housing authority is a step in the right direction for local area improvement, but not a solution for blighted areas. EMMONS COLLINS.

LET HOUSING PAY ITS WAY.

Chicago, Sept. 29.—I see where some labor groups are trying to influence the legislature to "cooperate" with the federal government for low cost housing. They say they want building labor back at work. We all want that. But no one except those trying to get personal gain from it wants low cost housing unless it bears its proper share of expense. This idea of no taxes and free schools, free fire service, and free police is no good. It costs something to furnish these and they should pay regular taxes. The steps taken by legislature to date are 100 per cent right. J. W. KELLOGG.

THAT PLAY, "POWER."

Chicago, Sept. 30.—I wish to voice a vigorous protest against the government using its agencies to present such a one-sided piece of propaganda as the Federal theater project play, "Power." Instead of using the taxpayer's money on false, slanderous, villifying attacks against one of our great industries, they could easily spend it to strengthen our national defense or at least on a Congress street highway. A. J. STEINBERG.

WHY THE DELAY?

Chicago, Sept. 28.—Why doesn't the civil service commission post the results of the high school librarians' examination held in June of 1937? I understand the papers are marked and also that help is needed. J. R. D.

THE END NOT VISIBLE.

Chicago, Sept. 28.—How much longer will the people put up with the sales tax or is it here as a fixture and where is the money collected going?

BUYER.

HISTORY IN A CARTOON.

Des Moines, Ia., Sept. 30.—In today's TRIBUNE Parrish's cartoon carries concentrated history. He shows the dictator's dependence on civilization's skill to save his face, which is the most important part of his national anatomy. The smile on the Frenchman's face must be saved from Hitler's sight, hence the operator is tenderly careful of the ill chosen towels, the only ones in European stock except war. Chamberlain's hands appear clumsy in holding the nameless cloth in readiness, but his face shows the lines of hope graven during weary hours and miles.

But the face of Mussolini is a masterpiece of tell-tale. It watches the two operators, directing their work so it will save the face of the self-appointed "first soldier" without letting him have any war glory, thereby leaving the military pedestal for Mussolini so he can make Rome sit on her seven hills and howl loudly enough to blur his Ethiopian error, as compared with Adolf's accumulation in the Czech country.

The sword may typify brute strength, the pen may record our literary heritage, but the cartoonist's pencil translates public opinion into visibility. Long may it mark. CHARLES D. MCGREGOR.

WANTS WIDENED STREET.

Chicago, Sept. 28.—It seems to me some of the PWA money could be spent to widen some of the streets around this town. I mean especially North State and North Clark streets, Grand avenue, Chicago avenue, Division street. All of these streets carry a particularly heavy number of street cars and private automobile trafic. On none of them can an automobile pass between a parked car and a street car, and on all of them it takes many extra, precious minutes to get anywhere.

There are probably many other streets which could do with a bit of widening, but I mention these because I'm especially familiar with them and because conditions on them are typical of the entire city. "THE MILKMAN."

DISAPPROVES OF A CARTOON.

Chicago, Sept. 30.—People in this country, far removed from the scene of European difficulties, yet with the fear of war in their hearts, have turned eagerly to the press and radio for news of European events. A peaceful settlement of problems in Europe, now apparently achieved, is most earnestly desired in this country and abroad. International diplomacy is sorely needed.

In view of this fact, the cartoon by Orr on the front page of today's TRIBUNE depicting "The Man Who Never Prays," is totally uncalled for and in lamentably poor taste.

KATHARINE TAYLOR.

WANTS HER SON TO LEARN.

Chicago, Sept. 28.—I do not agree with the Grand Rapids father who objects to crime stories on the radio. I have a son three years old and can't wait till he is old enough to listen and understand these crime broadcasts—so he will learn that crime doesn't pay.

TRUTH PROTECTS OUR COUNTRY.

Chicago, Sept. 28.—Several people have written in asking that we consider the happier side of the WPA. They feel that the WPA series appearing in THE TRIBUNE is purposely hunting up the dark side. I, too, have read these articles. It seems to me they have been written with moderation and with an honest desire to bring to light trends which unchecked will ruin our dear country. I remember years ago a conversation which opened a light on the word love.

"Watchfulness, vigilance, alertness are love," this person said. And I feel sure in the critical days through which we are moving that alertness to anything which will change our people for the worse, weaken their fine courage, and break their independence is the highest love we can give our flag.

Thank God for a free press that stands ready to give us the right steer! Facts, truth may be harsh and disappointing [for the moment]. But the truth only helps in the long run. Its hand is friendly, its friendship everlasting.

AN AMERICAN.

PETER CRAWFORD, PIONEER.

Chicago, Sept. 30.—May I add my word to the discussion regarding origin of the name Crawford avenue? At 2230 South Pulaski road there is a bronze memorial tablet, placed last year by the Chicago Historical society and Mayor Kelly's centennial committee, which reads: "On this site in 1848 Peter and Sophronia Crawford established their farm home. Among the pioneer builders of Chicagoland they were accounted outstanding citizens and in 1863 Crawford avenue was named in their honor." Also, the Chicago city directory of 1863 shows a primitive Crawford road at the same location adjacent to their farm. Peter Crawford was the first settler of the Lawndale-Crawford area. He subdivided his farm into the old town of Crawford in 1873.

LET U. S. A. COME FIRST.

Chicago, Sept. 28.—Allow me to express my personal gratitude for the editorial in this morning's TRIBUNE entitled "Froth on the Melting Pot." I believe you have hit the nail on the head. Saturday night I was on a public business street and saw posters and heard cries of "Down with Hitler." I am not a German, but any one of German extraction would have been aroused to fighting. We are Americans. Let us keep our heads and hearts in check. The United States of America is my adopted home. It comes first and foremost.

DRIVING AND DRINKING.

Chicago, Sept. 29.—While traveling through the south recently on my way to and from Mexico, I frequently saw this sign along the highway: "If you drive, don't drink. If you drink, don't drive."

It would be an excellent thing to have this sign appear in many places along the streets of not only Chicago but in all the cities of the United States.

William and Clyde Millar out for daily stroll on Michigan avenue.

Whenever William Millar or his brother, Clyde, both ex-showmen, read about the upward trend in hair styles, they frown. For five years they have advocated the page boy bob. In fact, both wear it.

William is 75. Clyde is 73. Tall, with rosy complexions and shining, clear eyes, they live together at 127 West Erie street. Every day they take long walks together, in the course of which from 10 to 15 persons stop to ask them whether they are twins and why they wear their hair, which falls in snowy cascades to their shoulders, that way.

"And we always tell them," explained William, with a quizzical smile and a glint of his steel blue eyes, "we wear it long because we like it long."

HUNT 2 HIT-RUN DRIVERS AFTER FATAL ACCIDENT

Wabash avenue police yesterday were hunting two hit and run autoists whose speeding cars struck a pedestrian and left him to die early in the day on 46th and State streets.

The victim, John Campbell, 30 years old, colored, 4546 State street, was struck by the first of the two cars and was hurled into the path of the second, which knocked him down and ran over him. Neither machine stopped.

Herbert Sieck, 32 years old, 1749 North Kedvale avenue, a mechanic, was fatally injured yesterday by a Yellow taxicab in front of 4236 North avenue. The driver, Robert Williams, 4250 Haddon avenue, took Sieck to the Danish American hospital, where he died several hours later. Williams said Sieck stepped unexpectedly in front of his cab.

Leroy Larmar, 32, of 909 Argyle street, was injured fatally when his car crashed against a lamp post at 2657 Chicago avenue.

Up to 4 p. m. yesterday 607 persons had been killed by automobiles in Cook county since Jan. 1. In Chicago 467 were killed in the same period and 14,760 were injured.

Twin Girl Coughs to Death; Firemen Unable to Save Her

MOTHER LEAPS OUT OF WINDOW AT LIQUOR PARTY

Mrs. Grace Fiedler, 20 years old, mother of an infant son, ended a cocktail party in her home at 3426 Southport avenue by leaping from a second story window yesterday afternoon. She landed on a concrete walk. Her husband, Frank, and other members of the party took her to the American hospital, where it was said she might have suffered internal injuries. No bones were broken.

The party was given as a wedding anniversary celebration for Fiedler's sister, Lorraine, and her husband, Anthony Battaglia. Three other couples attended it. Fiedler, a mechanic, said he didn't know why his wife had leaped.

"She had a few drinks and seemed to be having a good time," he said. "She just jumped from her chair, hollered 'whoopee,' and sprang out. I don't know anything that was worrying her. Maybe it was just the drinks that made her do it."

PREDICTS OWN DEATH IN CRASH; CAR IS HIT BY A FREIGHT TRAIN

Chico, Cal., Oct. 2.—(AP)—Four years ago Mrs. Harry Ballew, a sister of Ralph Blasingame, was struck and killed by an automobile. Two years ago his twin brother, Harris Blasingame, was fatally injured in an automobile accident. Ralph Blasingame told friends he expected to die the same way. He was killed today when a car in which he was riding crashed into a moving freight train at a crossing.

PRE-MARRIAGE EXAMINATIONS

With separate departments for men and women, the Public Health Institute is especially well fitted to make the medical tests which the law requires every couple to have before a marriage license can be obtained. A thorough physical examination, including all necessary laboratory tests, costs $3.00 per person. Those examined before 2 P.M. (at 159 or 169 N. Dearborn St.) can have certificates same day.

"AM I REALLY CURED?"

You can't tell if you are rid of the germs of gonorrhea or syphilis without tests of cure from this clinic or some other reliable doctor!

SELF TREATMENT for a venereal disease may speedily relieve your symptoms and cause you to feel as well as you ever did. But you have no proof whatever that all of the germs have been driven out of your system and that you are entirely non-infectious!

That is why treating yourself for gonorrhea or syphilis is such a reckless thing to do. It gives you an utterly false sense of security, because some of the germs are likely to remain in your body and lead to serious trouble months or even years later.

No reliable physician or clinic ever pronounces a venereal disease sufferer cured until certain laboratory tests and physical examinations have been passed. For unless there is definite proof that the last germ has been killed, some very disastrous consequences may easily occur!

Uncured gonorrhea, for example, has long been the leading cause of blindness among newly-born babies, and often results in sterility, crippling rheumatism, or serious prostate, bladder and other troubles. Uncured syphilis is responsible for the majority of stillborn, deformed and feeble-minded infants, and frequently leads to heart disease, blindness, paralysis, nervous breakdowns and even insanity!

Obtain proof of cure!

Remember, the mere disappearance of symptoms does not necessarily mean that you are free from disease. So, if you have been treating yourself for gonorrhea or syphilis, do not delay in getting the tests of cure required to prove that you are non-infectious. Such tests can be obtained from the competent physicians of the Public Health Institute or a capable private doctor.

The Public Health Institute is unusually painstaking in carrying out its tests of cure. It will not give a patient a clean bill of health until the most rigid laboratory tests and physical examinations have been made. Thus any person discharged as cured by the Public Health Institute can be confident that he or she is no longer infectious.

One of the largest clinics of its kind in the world, the Public Health Institute has been specializing in venereal infections ever since 1920. To date it has given over 5,000,000 examinations and treatments to more than 250,000 individual patients!

No one is turned away

Organized by public-spirited citizens as a corporation "NOT-FOR-PROFIT" under the laws of the State of Illinois, the Public Health Institute puts specialized venereal disease attention within the reach of those with limited incomes. A thorough physical examination for gonorrhea and syphilis, including blood tests, urinalysis and gonorrheal smears, costs only $3.00, while some treatments for syphilis cost as little as $1.00 and some of those for gonorrhea still less.

Hence there is no need for any venereal disease victim who has treated himself to be deprived of tests of cure. For not only can a thorough examination be obtained inexpensively, but even those temporarily short of funds will not be turned away!

Prentice Porter Wins Mill Creek Hunter Trials

BY ELEANOR PAGE.

TAKE a sunny day, add rolling terrain with ground left soft by plenty of rain, and you have two reasons why spectators and horsemen alike were in jolly spirits at the Mill Creek Hunt's hunter trials, held all day yesterday. An Indian summer haze brought on by the setting sun lent further beauty to the panorama of the jumping course laid out on Austin Niblack's and Mrs. Benjamin Behr's property across from the hunt clubhouse near Millburn.

The hunter trials, held annually, primarily are a party for the landowners over whose property the Mill Creek rides, and the landowners are guests of the members at luncheon that day. The hunt had its own party Saturday night at the Onwentsia club with an auction of the horses that competed in the trials.

S. Prentice Porter was a popular choice as well as the choice of the judge, William Emery of Warrenton, Va., as the winner of the trials. Col. Wilfrid Blunt was awarded a ribbon as reserve champion. The two winners wore pink coats and master's caps.

Spectators of Both Sexes Wear Tweed.

Tweed suits were the unanimous choice of masculine and feminine spectators, and no suit was smarter or more perfectly tailored than Mrs. Emery's brown checked one. Durand Smith and John Payne Kellogg were each other's sartorial antithesis. The former was a symphony in gray, complete to suede gloves, walking stick, and carnation boutonniere; the latter wore a dark turtle neck sweater with baggy tweeds.

Mrs. Kellogg, who was one of the six eligible for the championship, was riding for the first time this summer, having just returned from her new summer home in Vancouver, B. C. Other finalists were Mrs. Charles H. Morse Jr., Hugh McBirney Johnston, and Mrs. Edward H. Bennett.

Mrs. Bennett, her debutante daughter, Miss Betty Mead, and Col. Blunt took second place in the hunt teams competition, which was won by Mrs. Samuel J. Walker, Mrs. William B. McIlvaine, and John T. Pirie Jr. The young entry, Elizabeth Hubbard and Joy Salisbury, led by Mr. Porter, received honorable mention. The old guard team, made up of Mrs. Orton Prime of Oconomowoc, winner of last year's trials championship, Mrs. Howard Linn and Mrs. John Andress King, won the spectators' applause.

Holding a little court on the sidelines was Leander J. McCormick, who was kept busy introducing his friends to his attractive wife and debutante daughter, Miss Marie Blanche De Brotonne McCormick. They have been living abroad until recently.

Long Meadow and Du Page Followers Attend.

The Long Meadow and the Du Page hounds were invited to enter hunt teams this year so there was a large turnout of followers of both those hunts. Mrs. Robert R. McCormick and Mrs. Chauncey McCormick of Du Page both had horses in the hunt teams, with Miss Anne Jay Bryant, Bradford Ripley II., Miss Louise Brydon, Horace Wetmore, and Deering McCormick among those riding them. Ross J. Beatty Jr., Bud Jones, and Henry Meers rode for the Long Meadow.

Among those who brought picnic luncheons and watched from the automobiles was a large group of young people, including Miss Ellen Adair Orr, Theodore Roosevelt III., Miss Kay Goodman, Garfield King, the junior W. Edwin Stanleys, Miss Barbara Stanley and her fiancé, Walter Cobb Coleman, A. Werk Cook, Gordon Palmer, and Mr. and Mrs. Chauncey Keep Hutchins, Debutante Sally Perry with William Dickinson, the C. Daggett Harveys, Mrs. Robert S. Pirie, Mr. and Mrs. Laurence B. Robbins, Tom Potter, Miss Suzanne Morris, the Corwith Hamills, and Mr. and Mrs. Nelson L. Barnes Jr. The Byron Harveys, David Leavitt, the Philip Mahers, and Miss Margot Reid and her fiancé, Alanson Donald, were others picnicking in groups.

When the sun descended every one who had brought a topcoat was glad to put it on. Mrs. A. Watson Armour III.'s vivid red coat nearly matched the pink of the hunt coats, as the last of the hunt teams cantered off after the judging.

Two hitherto unreported stories about the duke and duchess of Windsor come from Miss Anne Burrows of Chicago, who was in Vienna last time the British exking and his duchess stopped there. Miss Burrows encountered the duke and duchess in a postcard shop looking through the piles of cards, many of which showed photographs of European royalty and political personages, including one of the prince of Wales in his christening robes, another of the late czar, age 12. The duke was pulling out photographs of members of his family. He addressed the proprietress in German, asking for a special card, and while she searched for his request, an elderly Viennese, the only other occupant of the shop besides Miss Burrows, put his spectacles low on his nose, peered quizzically over them at the duke, and corrected:

"You pronounce it Franzose, junger mann."

The duke of Windsor looked up, flushed a little, and answered, "Ja, danke, Franzose." Then they all resumed their card sorting.

The other tale concerned the visit received by a Viennese skin specialist from the Bristole hotel from the duke and duchess of Windsor asking for an appointment. The duchess was suffering from a slight skin eruption, and she enumerated the various creams and lotions she used, in answer to the specialist's inquiry.

"Here's a prescription for face cream and powder," said the specialist. "Use this and your skin will clear up. Throw those other things out."

"Thank God," exclaimed the duke. "Now our luggage will be lighter!"

"May I correct the statement in your column about the girl who walks to work by whose whereabouts the Washington bus passengers set their watches? Her name is Crystal, and she has made her daily walk on Washington boulevard for four years, not one year. Strange passengers on the Washington bus have not noted this. H. M. Thompson."

Old Black Marias.

The efficiency of our scouts and volunteer stooges is proved by the reports on those used paddy wagons for sale in parking lots, three on Ashland avenue, one on the south side. Two of them are accounted for. One Black Maria is being used by a cleaning and dyeing company as a pickup and delivery truck, back step and all, with its name in home made lettering on the side. Scouts report seeing it on Racine avenue, on Western avenue, on Paulina and on other west side streets.

A second has a new job hauling tomatoes about town.

"It is owned and suitably lettered by a fruit mart on Monterey avenue, but can be seen almost every night on South Halsted street between 67th and 68th. I think he's got a girl there," writes T. A. Polley. That's getting the dope.

"Barber of Seville" Will Open San Carlo Opera Series Tonight

The fall musical season opens tonight, with the beginning of a three week répertoire of grand opera by the San Carlo Opera company in the Auditorium theater. Tonight's initial bill is Rossini's "The Barber of Seville." Ivan Petroff, Bulgarian baritone, makes his Chicago debut as Figaro, in a cast including Lucille Meusel, Dimitri Onofrei, Harold Kravitt, and Natale Cervi. Carlo Peroni will conduct.

Henry Gardners Tell Betrothal of Marie Louise

BY JUDITH CASS.

MR. AND MRS. HENRY A. GARDNER of Winnetka today are announcing the engagement of their daughter, Marie Louise, to Frederick Gleim Jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. Frederick Gleim of Washington, D. C.

The announcement is of great interest in golfing circles as well as in the wide circle of Gardner relatives and friends, for young Mr. Gleim is the golfing instructor at the Shoreacres club. His fiancée, who has taken part in many tournaments, is the woman's golf champion of the Indian Hill club.

Miss Gardner is a granddaughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. Livingston Gifford of New York and of the late Mr. and Mrs. Henry A. Gardner of Hinsdale. She is a graduate of the Masters school at Dobbs Ferry, N. Y., and is a member of the Chicago Junior league. She was introduced to society at a tea at the Indian Hill club in the fall of 1933.

Mr. Gleim attended school in Virginia. No date has been set for the wedding.

Duck Hunters Prepare for Illinois Season.

To those who hunt ducks in Wisconsin or Michigan Oct. 1 is the opening of the season, but those who do their duck hunting in Illinois Oct. 15 is the all-important date. On that morning, at 7 o'clock, the season will open and hours before then many of Chicago's ardent duck hunters will be downstate at their clubs, ready to fire from the blinds at the first possible moment.

James R. Offield is going the the Grand Island club at Bath several days before the 15th, for he hunts with a camera as well as with a shotgun and he wants to get his pictures before he gets his ducks. Among others who are members of the Grand Island club, which has an island in the middle of the Illinois river, are Dexter Cummings, John B. Drake, George E. Scott and Scott Durand., Usually the club has one week-end during the season when feminine guests are allowed. This year it will be the first week-end of the season.

Stuart Logans to Have Large Party at Lodge.

Ladies are allowed almost every week-end at Loganberry lodge, Stuart Logans' place at Bath, but occasionally he has a stag party and then no ladies are permitted. Mr. Logan has an 800 acre hunting tract so invitations to accompany him duck shooting are eagerly sought by his friends. Their wives, too, like to be asked to Loganberry lodge, for Mrs. Logan and the other women find plenty of interesting things to do even if they are not huntresses. The Logans are planning to have a large party the week-end of the 15th.

The junior Joseph E. Otises came back to Chicago from their farm at Harbor Springs, Mich., yesterday and tomorrow they go to the Virginia Hot Springs for a brief vacation. They will return in time, however, to go back to their farm for some duck hunting before the season ends.

Mrs. Robert M. Curtis drove her father, Edward P. Russell, down from Harbor Point last Thursday. Yesterday she drove back to the Point to join the others of the family who will remain in the north until the middle of next week. They are staying up especially so that Teddy Russell may have ten days of duck hunting. Young Mr. Russell, who was graduated from the Hill

Good Morning!

"The Robber's Bride" was adapted from the opera "Gasparone."

It hails from the German studios and is lush with its leading men and women—having two of each. The men are brunettes, the ladies blondes, and one of the former, Johannes Heesters, bears a startling resemblance to Charles Boyer, both in looks and manner. ["Which," jot down the feminine fans, "is certainly one reason for seeing 'The Robber's Bride'!"]

Yes, indeedy. Because Mr. Heesters IS vurr' thisa and thusa. So is Marika Rokk, who plays heart interest partner to Oscar Sima, the other male lead. A German Eleanor Powell of sorts, amazingly light on her tapping toes and blithesomely charming to contemplate. As for Sima and Edith Schollwer—they pass. . . . Supporting players I thought excellent and found some of the music pleasing—though none of it remarkable.

In the story, actors on the stage and the chief characters in a real life smuggling drama, mix lots. He who resembles Mr. Boyer is a mysterious stranger, suspected by various persons in high places of being the bandit, Gasparone. If you're up on your movie guesswork you'll foretell that he's no such thing and be correct in this surmise.

His passion for the Countess Ambrat—due to come into an inheritance—and Dancer Ita's reciprocated love for the governor's son, Sindulfo, whose papa wants him to wed the countess, furnish romantic complications aplenty. . . .

The picture is rather too long and some of the explanatory titles are not couched in the best of English. But, as a whole, "The Robber's Bride" is pretty fair entertainment.

See you tomorrow.

Looking at Hollywood

By Ed Sullivan

The Week's Wash

Hollywood, Cal., Oct. 2.—Myron Selznick will offer Loretta Young at $125,000 a picture when her contract lapses at 20th Century-Fox on Jan. 6. Rival studios already are offering $100,000 a flicker for her. . . . Wendy Barrie's real crush is Tyrone Power, the Jesse James of hearts. . . . Randy Scott's attraction on that set is Nancy Kelly. . . . Merle Oberon and David Niven are back in swing time. . . . Anita Louise has taken C. McCarthy's place on Edgar Bergen's knee. . . . Douglas Corrigan will get $75,000 from RKO for his end. There will be no love interest in the picture. . . . John Barrymore and his Elaine will start emoting in the Brock Pemberton show in December. He has to do two more pictures right away. . . . "I love You, Doll," inscribed on a gold circlet is Jack Benny's latest present to Mary Livingstone, with a gold wrist watch for good measure. . . . Lillian Roth's trip east may patch up the Judge Shalleck rift. . . . Benita Hume and Ronald Colman were married almost to the day predicted here.

Loretta Young.

Lionel Barrymore will never walk again, according to his doctors. . . . Get Wally Beery to tell you his real opinion of Mickey Rooney if you want the hair to stand on your head. . . . Fannie Brice goes into the Hedy La Marr-Spencer Tracy picture. . . . The actors-agents war is on in earnest. The actors will submit ten points. Chief among the demands will be the abolition of contracts for more than a year; the reduction of commission fees from 10 per cent to 5 per cent. The present invalidation clause is four months. The actors also will demand that agents concentrate on agenting and this apparently is aimed at Myron Selznick, who is sponsoring production ventures designed to put actors to work. Thirty of the big-time agents of Hollywood will snub the Wednesday night meeting of the Screen Actors' guild. The agents will draw up battle plans tonight at an emergency huddle.

Eyeful on Charlie Lederer's arm is Geraldine Fitzpatrick, a newcomer.

SYNOPSIS.

David Beddoes, young American, accompanies his cousin Alison to a party at Lady Wibbe's. By mistake they go to the house next door. While they are talking to the spinsterish woman who receives them they hear a woman scream and a body fall. The spinster explains it is a parrot. But young Penelope Wibbe says their strange neighbors have no parrot. While in the house David had seen a favorite book of his former love, Betsy Greentree, with her initials in it. Betsy's father died after losing his money. While traveling in Europe with her aunt, Fanny Rush, Betsy met and married an Englishman, Geoffrey Scarpath. David breakfasts next morning with Alison and her friend, Dr. Colin Ladbroke. Penelope calls to tell them their neighbors have acquired a parrot. David learns the Scarpaths live in the mysterious house and sends a letter there to Betsy. A few days later David and Alison run into Scarpath at the American club, where he calls to deliver a letter to David. He tells them Betsy is suffering from a chronic nervous condition and can have no visitors, that she is being taken care of by his sister. In the guise of a telephone repair man David gains a secret interview with Betsy, and learns she did not receive his letter.

INSTALMENT XIII.

WEDDED STRANGERS.

Tears had started again and this time ran down Elizabeth's cheeks unnoticed. David took her hand and held it tightly.

"I'd hoped to be in the middle of things," she went on. "Only Dr. Broderick insisted I must be where it's dead quiet. There isn't much money, so that's why they had to take this house. I'll stay here, I imagine, till I just peter out."

"You're not going to die!" David said it between his teeth. "For one thing, I won't let you. So just chew on that!"

She laughed brokenly, but sent him a grateful look as she answered, "O, darling David, you're being sweet, but it's just that you don't know. I do, so I can't fool myself. Not since I read all about myself in a book."

"Book? What book?" He scowled down at her.

"O, a medical book Geoffrey forgot and left in here! I found where he was reading, and took in two whole pages. I've never told him."

"You poor infant!"

"O, please don't start pitying me! I'm used to the idea now. I did rather want to go on living, in spite of all, but . . ."

"In spite of . . .?" He leaned close. "Elizabeth, tell me this: before you got ill, were you happy?"

"Why not?" she fenced. "I married the man I wanted, didn't I? It may have been a scrap, lonely with no friends, only country people all thinking me a freak . . ."

"Cut that! I want the truth."

She wavered, and her bravado wilted. Quite suddenly she sank her head on her knees and gave way to a tornado of weeping.

"No, no!" she sobbed wildly. "Never, for one moment! My fault, I expect, but O, David, I did try!"

Blood surged hot in his temples. Patiently he waited for her shudders to subside, which presently they did—from an exterior cause. Outside the room a shambling step was approaching. With one accord both of them leaped up, Elizabeth's drenched face alert with panic. However, the step passed by, accompanied by a low chirrup.

"Only Parsons." She relaxed, grimacing. "Putting out the parrot. S'sh . . ." When the old man had returned and gone downstairs she added less guardedly. "Yes, of all things, a parrot! Some one sent it to Evie on Sunday, wanting her to look after it—as though she hadn't enough! David—what's the matter?"

"O, nothing. You like your sister-in-law, do you?"

"Well . . ." Conscientiousness fought with dubiety. "Evie's all right."

"Is she kind to you?"

"O, yes!" Elizabeth Scarpath seemed amazed by the question. "David," she said curiously, "you didn't imagine I wasn't getting considerate treatment, did you? Because that's quite absurd."

"I'm glad," he grunted, unconvincingly.

"I see, you did imagine it. Poor dears, they're doing their utmost to . . . to win a losing game. Why, Geoffrey knows at once if I'm the least bit worse! On Saturday night he was quite savage thinking I'd harm myself by . . ." She bit her lip, red with confusion.

"Go ahead," he urged relentlessly. "We heard the rumpus. What did he do to you?"

"You heard . . .? O, David! So that's what you thought!" Silent a moment, she began afresh, choosing her words with great care. "I don't wonder you got queer ideas. I was to blame. I went to pieces and screamed. Geoffrey grabbed me, you see, on the very point of rushing down—like a lunatic. Why, I was only in my nightgown! I can't tell what possessed me. Geoffrey may not love me—you can't force these things, but if he did pull a little caveman stuff he meant it for the best. Considering all he has to put up with he keeps his temper remarkably well."

Possibly this was a fairly honest account. He remembered Elizabeth had always been singularly truthful. She had, though, made various betrayals, on the chief of which he now picked.

"You say he doesn't love you. Did he, at first?"

"It seemed so." She spoke almost to herself. "And there wasn't any other reason for marrying me, was there? I mean, he could have had heaps of girls with money. I certainly thought he was in love. I was all swept away by the . . . the electric rush of him.

"In Cannes, you know. He was introduced to Fanny and me just after we'd watched him win a tennis tournament—such marvelous play, David!—and Fanny fell for him with both feet. Every one does, of course, but you have to know him to understand.

"Let's see: it was just five weeks till we were married. Half that time I was frantic for fear he wouldn't propose . . . which shows how I felt about him. O, David, the joy when he did ask me! All my problems were solved—or so I believed."

Problems? David pricked up his ears.

"Meaning, I take it, that you and your aunt weren't hitting it off?"

"We were having rows day and night. O, don't blame Fanny! She was burning to be off on another of her tours. Doing what she considered her duty by me kept her tied by the leg, and of course made her irritable. And she absolutely refused to let me try earning my own living—said she'd as soon send a caged canary out to fend for itself. Though I'm not quite a fool, David, I could have learned to do something. Anyhow, she wouldn't let me, and so on we went, nagging at each other till I was desperate. Till Geoffrey hove in sight."

A spontaneous laugh broke from Elizabeth.

"David, she perked up instantly and started purring, like a cream-fed tabby cat! If you'd seen her, hauling me to all the smart shops in Cannes and plastering me with model frocks! It was her first and only effort at matchmaking, but she put her soul into it—poor Fanny."

After a slight pause the next followed soberly. "And now, of course, I hardly hear from her at all. I don't even know where she's taken herself. Of course, she doesn't know I'm like this. I'd rather die than drag her back."

He steered her again to the main theme.

"Then both of you were in love at the start. For how long?"

"I think," she answered dispassionately, "it lasted about three days. No, it was over before that, though I refused to believe it so soon. Fanny left us after the wedding breakfast, at the Ritz. Geoffrey and I saw her off at the Gare de l'Est, and when the train had pulled out I turned and saw him looking at me. David, I feel cold when I think of it. I might have been some stranger standing there."

A new, not unwelcome suspicion gripped him.

"Let's get this straight, Elizabeth," he said searchingly. "Are you trying to tell me your marriage had finished before it began?"

"No. O, not literally." She spoke with restraint. "Only I never did lose that feeling of being—well, an outsider. Some one he hated to be bothered with. I started getting on his nerves. My clothes, my way of talking—O, everything! I couldn't bear it and I flew at him. Funny, that used to amuse him, and for a little it made him notice me more. Not for long, though. After six months I got ill, and of course that just put the lid on my pretense."

She caught tight hold of David's arm. "Why did he want me?" she demanded. "For he did—till I'd said yes. I know he's fastidious and impatient, but even so how can any man veer round so completely in just that little time?"

GASOLINE ALLEY—THROUGH THE LAST STRAW

WINNIE WINKLE, THE BREADWINNER: Never Leave for Tomorrow—

Milk Imbibed Daily Is One Way to Beauty

BY ANTOINETTE DONNELLY.

[Copyright: 1938: By The Chicago Tribune-N. Y. News Syndicate, Inc.]

Nothing can do much toward building up health and protection from disease as does the right diet, we are told time and again. Now the National Dairy Council calls our attention to the chief element of a good diet, which is milk.

Milk, they tell us, meets all the claims of many patent medicines. It is a tonic. It is a revitalizer. It is a nerve quieter. It builds strong bones, teeth, muscles and increases the ability of the body to resist disease.

"Milk relieves between-meal fatigue, as office and factory workers know. It supplies vitamins naturally."

Save dentist's bills, urges Dr. E. V. McCollum, famous Johns Hopkins nutrition expert, by the mealtime method. To prevent cavities, a hard smooth enamel must be built up by a diet containing calcium and vitamins A, C and D. Calcium and vitamin A are found in milk in large amounts. Vitamin D milk increases the daily supply of this vitamin.

Thomas I. Davis, educator of Toronto, Can., found on a recent research study carried on in his school that school children who drink milk rate higher in achivement than those who do not.

Independent of any commercial angles, Mr. Davis carried out a series of tests at his school for three years in which he found better attendance among the milk drinkers, a better weight stability.

A child generally becomes a little fatigued by the middle of the forenoon, Davis found, which the pick-up effect of milk drinking quickly overcame.

THROUGH THE LOOKING GLASS

The trappings of beauty are all very well. It would be a pretty dismal world without them, and certainly they do play a tremendous part in turning out the woman we find good looking, but sometimes we have a feeling that we all overlook some of the fundamentals and lean too much on external aids.

There is the matter of getting the proper amount of sleep. Outside of keeping general health at par nothing is so important in the preservation of good looks. We shouldn't forget this, ever. The proper amount of sleep for the individual is something only that individual [providing she is past childhood] can determine. You can tell by the way you feel—and above all by the way you look—whether you're getting enough rest.

Some people need plenty of sleep; and that doesn't mean that they're lazy. The peculiar function of their physical and nervous systems probably makes greater inroads on their store of energy. They're just not people who can get by on six hours or so. They probably never will be. Maybe they need at least ten hours a night. Others can get by with less.

Sleep is a great restorer, but don't bank too much on its power to repair. The thing to do is to keep a jump ahead of fatigue by getting enough rest. Insufficient sleep night after night has a cumulative effect that exhibits itself in the eyes, the skin, the contour of the face and the general outlook on life.

Be faithful to your creams, your exercise and your flattering makeup—but don't forget that you can't camouflage the permanent damage done by consistent lack of enough sleep.

Baby Requires Time to Become Used to New Nurse or Maid

BY GLADYS HUNTINGTON BEVANS.

[Copyright: 1938: By The Chicago Tribune-N. Y. News Syndicate, Inc.]

Too rarely, I'm afraid, do we talk about the maid or nurse as a factor in family life. Yet there is a great deal to be said on the subject, particularly where a mother [as many are] is away all day at her work.

"In two weeks should my baby of sixteen months let the new nurse do everything for him?" is the form today's question took.

I should decidedly do as this mother says she is doing—let him, of his own accord, make the advances.

There is no reason why a baby should accept instantly a new person in every intimate detail of his life. I think he is showing great adaptability if, in much less than two weeks, he plays with and follows a new maid around, especially in view of the fact that he has not been put in the way of meeting strangers frequently. And especially in view of another fact, which is that children, who when they are small babies will "go to any one," frequently become reluctant to do so at the age of this little boy. This is a really great change in his world. He must have time to adapt himself to it.

If the baby will play with the new maid after only a few days, he will undoubtedly let her begin to do other things for him shortly. If he does not yield soon, any understanding mother will be able to break the ice.

WEDDINGS

The wedding of Miss Mary Elizabeth Morgaridge, daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. Frank Morgaridge of Glen Ridge, N. J., and Edward Charles Gueroult, son of Mr. and Mrs. M. The wedding of Miss Marie Purdon, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George Douglas Purdon of Glencoe, to Leo Paul Corcoran, son of the late Mr. and Mrs. John J. Corcoran of Chicago, will take place on Oct. 15. The ceremony will be performed at 11 o'clock in the morning at the Sacred Heart church in Hubbard Woods.

school last spring, has decided to take a business course in Chicago instead of going to college.

The curtain goes up tonight on the first opera of the fall season,, a performance of "The Barber of Seville," presented by the San Carlo Opera company at the Auditorium theater for the benefit of the Church Mission of Help. Many who are interested in opera and in the mission purchased boxes, but will not be occupying them tonight because they still are out of town or have gone away on a fall holiday. This does not mean, however, that the boxes will remain unoccupied, for younger members of the families or friends or other relatives will make use of the boxes.

The George A. Ranneys and the Albert A. Spragues, who have gone to the Virginia Hot Springs, turned their boxes over to friends. The S. Parsons Warrens are taking their guests to dinner at the Cliff Dwellers before the opera; the Fred Gerlachs are entertaining at home. Other boxholders are Mrs. D. Mark Cummings, Mrs. Ruthven Deane, the Alan C. Dixons, and the Rev. and Mrs. Dudley S. Stark.

Mrs. F. C. Benson Belliss, wife of the rector of St. Paul's church, is chairman of the benefit. Mrs. Theodore W. Robinson is president of the organization. Selling programs vill be a group of debutantes, among them Miss Miriam Bartlett, Miss Elizabeth Crawford, Miss Catherine Johnson, and Miss Mary Hale, under the direction of Miss Valeria Harris. Miss Helen Shoemaker, Miss Florence Hermes and Miss Dorothy Wilder also will be selling programs.

Helen Daniels' Bridesmaids to Be Guests at Luncheon.

Mrs. David Henry Davis, who is to be matron of honor at the wedding Saturday of her cousin, Miss Helen Daniels, to Walter D. Monroe Jr., will entertain the bridesmaids at luncheon on Thursday. Attending Miss Daniels are to be Miss Virginia Clegg of Bridgeport, Conn., a classmate of the bride's at Smith; Miss Heath Horton, Miss Margaret Gethro, Miss Jeannette Havens, and Joan Monroe, the bridegroom's young sister.

Mr. Davis is to be the best man at the wedding, which will take place at 8 o'clock in the evening in Kenwood church, with a reception following at the Shoreland hotel. Jack H. Monroe, brother of the bridegroom; Lawrence Davis, Raymond E. Daniels Jr., William P. McCarthy, James Ware, and Thomas Holt of Elkhart will usher.

Mr. and Mrs. Raymond E. Daniels, parents of the bride, are giving a dinner at home on the eve of the wedding after the wedding rehersal. After a wedding trip to the White Sulphur Springs Mr. Monroe and his bride will be at home on the south side.

Archer-Patterson Wedding to Be Nov. 2.

The date for the wedding of Miss Betty Archer to John Graham Patterson has been set for Nov. 2. The ceremony will take place at 4:30 o'clock at St. Matthew's Episcopal church, Evanston, the Rev. John Heuss officiating. A reception will follow at the Country Club of Evanston.

Miss Archer, daughter of the James D'Wolf Archers of Evanston, will have Mrs. Joshua J. D. Derry for her matron of honor. The bridesmaids will be Mrs. Lawrence Denman, Mrs. Chester N. Goltra, and Miss Frances Olmsted. Barton Cook will be his cousin's best man, and ushering will be another cousin, Charles Fuller; Thomas Twerdahl, Ralph C. Angell, and William Rockwell of North Andover, Mass.

Mr. Patterson is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Graham C. Patterson of Ardmore, Pa., formerly of Evanston. Mr. Rockwell, Mr. Angell, and the bridegroom were classmates at Harvard.

Mrs. John B. Erskine, Mrs. Stewart Boal, Miss Mardi Burnham, Miss Florence Hermes, Miss Laura Moyer and Miss Lois Thompson are to model today at the first of a series of fashion shows to be held at a restaurant at 900 North Michigan avenue. The shows will be given every Monday during October.

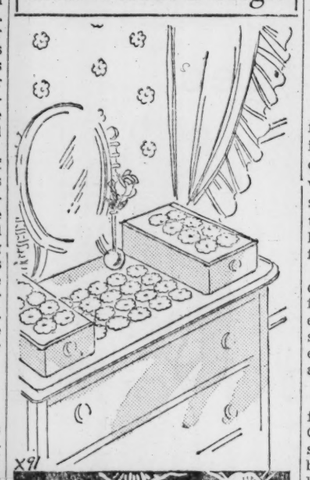
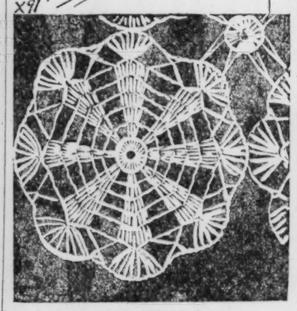
Dresser Set Is Crocheted in Fern and Wheel Design





BY ELLEN BRUCE.

Crocheted dresser sets are suitable for use on virtually every type of bedroom furniture, from a vanity to a chifferobe. The fern wheel pattern in which this dresser set is created is one of the easy and quick-to-do crochet designs. Each motif is made separately and joined by a small lace wheel. White or ecru mercerized crochet cotton No. 50 and a steel crochet hook No. 9 comprise the requisites.

For instructions for crocheting the fern wheel dresser set, No. X-91, send 10 cents in stamps or coin to the Needlework Bureau, Chicago Tribune, 220 Fifth avenue, New York City.

Industrial Division of Community Fund Will Meet Tonight

Pre-campaign activities of leaders in the 1938 Community Fund drive have created optimism over attainment of the $3,550,000 goal, John Holmes, industrial division chairman, announced yesterday.

Excellent progress has been made, he reported, in enlisting business men as group leaders to supervise 7,500 volunteer workers. Industrial chairmen and team captains will meet in the Palmer house tonight for instructions in campaign procedure.

The campaign opens formally on Oct. 17. The amount sought this year is the same as in 1937.

Now It Can Be Told, What the New Styles Are

BY RHEA SEEGER.

Floundering fashionists out at the first authentic fall and winter showings have by this time come down out of the clouds and now know what's the fashion! Out of unlimited supplies, all sorts of bewildering selections, the stuff is jelled and all realize a new season has been successfully launched.

For the street . . . strident clash of color in slim line suits in tweeds, fabulously soft wools, and picturesque velvets. Slim waisted daytime silhouettes, high necks, longer jackets with shorter skirts, smooth hips and easily flared skirts.

For afternoon . . . more appealing feminine clothes than ever before. Clinging crêpes in silk and wool, swishy silks, velvets, gold thread embroidery around the round high necklines, shirrings as only expert designers can shirr, fullness under smooth control, neat small waistlines, and bodices that are moulded to the figure. Shirtwaist dresses in soft metallics, vivid color dresses under coats or with short smart fur jackets, romantic gloves, and accessories in brilliant splashes of contrast color . . . very small but eye appealing hats, with all the soft flattery of veil, feathers, ribbon bows, and a "pretty" outline. Muffs, and huge bags are also new and exciting.

Country clothes [also good for a day in town] feature the most effective of color schemes, unusual, different and soul satisfying. Fitted jackets, with all the freedom of well cut seams, soft folds, and plaits. Flared skirts, stitched seams with bright, soft suede accents such as separate jackets, waistcoats, hats, and gloves. Top coats that are classics, together with striped wool, chiffon, thin jersey and almost as thin monotone woolens. Frocks in one piece vie with shirtwaist wool dresses for career and budget allowances, all perfect in detail, design, and fabric.

For evening and big moments . . . emotionally beautiful clothes. Full skirted ball gowns, of glamorful velvets, stiff luscious taffetas, and satins or brocades. Hoop skirt petticoats. Lovely colors, glowing like jewels, ruby, topaz, sapphire, pearl tones and superb emerald and jade greens. Moire taffetas, taffeta backed velvets, and shimmering silk shot with metallic thread. Evening wraps, in dull wool trimmed with blinding embroidery and gold kidskin. Wide, wide capes full length, with a king's ransom of fur trim. Evening hoods of silver fox, mink or blue fox to wear over a coquettish flowered hat that fits like a spot just on the top of the coiffure.

Seek $60,000 Today in Tag Campaign for Children's League

If you don't want to wear a tag on your lapel today watch out for women on street corners. Three thousand of them will be patroling Chicago today for the annual tag day of the Chicago Children's Benefit league.

The league has a goal of $60,000 for this year, to be divided among fifty institutions for orphaned, ill, or underprivileged children. Mrs. James S. Forbes, 3000 Sheridan road, is president.

Co-eds from De Paul and Northwestern university also will serve as taggers.

Utility Apron Covers Frock

WOMAN'S AND MISS' APRON.

If you haven't been longing for an apron that is completely coverall, protecting your frocks while you go about your tasks, you are unusual indeed. Every woman we know feels that most aprons are too diminutive to be of much more than decorative use. Of course, the dainty, fragile little aprons are perfect for tea-time and hostessing, but when one is really working, a large, comfortable, expansive apron is the type desired. We think the garment in our pattern today is just the thing. It settles securely on the shoulders, wraps around the waist, and its front and back overlap to allow complete coverage of one's dress.

All types of sturdy cottons and linens make up well. Because these fabrics usually cost very little, you will find this apron so inexpensive you can use the pattern for several garments. You may edge it with rickrack or trim it with ready made binding. If you use a plain color, you might embellish the neckline with embroidery. May we suggest pattern No. E-11175, available for 10 cents extra?

Style No. 2696 is designed for sizes small, medium, and large. The medium size requires 2⅞ yards of 39 inch material, with 5 yards of braid or binding.

Cooking department mail indicates that Halloween parties are in the thoughts and plans of many readers. Since most parties will take the form of dinners, bridges or affairs calling for simple, late refreshments, I'm suggesting a menu for each of the types of entertainment. There are many more suggestions in our book, "Holidays and Holiday Meals," 23 cents in stamps by mail.

MENU FOR A HALLOWEEN DINNER.

Fruit Cup in Jack o' Lanterns
[Made from Oranges]
Ham Baked in Maple Sirup
Sweet Potatoes
Buttered Carrots in Spinach Nests
Golden Goblin Salad with French Dressing
Orange Nut Bread
Pumpkin Pie
Coffee

Golden Goblin Salad is a simple arrangement of a canned peach half on lettuce. On the back of the peach a face is made with cloves for eyes and nose and a slice of maraschino cherry for a mouth. Eyes, nose and mouth all may be made from cherry, if desired. The pit cavity of the peach may be stuffed with cream or cottage cheese. For a little larger salad, put two halves of peaches together with cream or cottage cheese and make the goblin face.

MENU FOR A HALLOWEEN BRIDGE PARTY.

Pear Jack o' Lantern Salad with Whipped Cream Dressing
Cider Punch

Pear Jack o' Lantern Salads are amusing little goblins made from pear halves put together with cream cheese and nuts, and stood upright in lettuce. Faces are made from whole cloves, or with bits of candy. A slice is cut from the top of each pear so that a hat made of a plain cookie, with a marshmallow or a chocolate for a crown, will fit nicely.

REFRESHMENTS FOR A HALLOWEEN EVENING PARTY.

Orange Frosted Doughnuts
Fruit Punch

Make plain doughnuts and ice them on one side with a confectioners' sugar frosting tinted with a little orange coloring. Sprinkle the frosting with coconut. A clever idea in serving doughnuts at a Halloween party is to string them on the handles of several small brooms. The punch might be served from a "witch's cauldron," a big, black kettle, with the doughnut ringed broomsticks propped against it on a buffet table.

Looking at Hollywood

By Ed Sullivan

. . . M.-G.-M.'s "Stablemates," with Wally Beery and Mickey Rooney rivaling "The Champ" combination, will coin a fortune, for the studio. No romance in the story, no glamor girls and only four leads. Five, if you count the horse. . . . Mrs. Ernest Truex, since the split-up, is working in an antique shop here. . . . At Lamaze's, Charlie Chaplin, Joe Schenck, A. C. Blumenthal, and Jay Paley discussing the Czech dismemberment. . . . Hedy La Marr flicking those long eyelashes at Reggie Gardiner and young Doug Fairbanks. . . . What's this about the Leon Belascos? . . . The Abe Lyman-Eleanor Powell passion is as cold as Max Schmeling. . . . George Brent and Olivia Dehavilland are at the "So Help Me" stage.

Billy Rose will wed Eleanor Holm "just as soon as we can get the final papers." . . . Fernand Gravet, who owes plenty to Mervy Le Roy, forgot to be grateful, which is dangerous. Le Roy won't discuss it, but there's ice in the air. . . . Is Gladys Swarthout's hubby off the Paramount pay roll? . . . Jimmy Durante follows Harry Richman into Chicago's Chez Paree. . . . Marx Brothers have been offered $40,000 to play four weeks at the Casa Manana, on Broadway. They have never played a night club. . . . Note to Jimmy Mattern: Just got the announcement of the young lady's arrival. Sir Stork evidently can fly as brilliantly as the little girl's old man! . . . Cliff [Universal] Work's wife is ailing. . . . The Ray Millands have passed the 7th milestone. . . . Benny Rubin's first picture calls for him to play an Irish doctor. Wait until you hear his brogue.

The Charlie [Andy] Correll baby is expected shortly. . . . Fred Astaire and Ginger Rogers, and Irene Dunne and Charles Boyer all rehersing on the RKO lot. . . . The Vernon Castle rôle will be the first in which Astaire is called upon to die at the finish. . . . First picture for Harry Langdon and Babe Hardy will find them in a southern summer resort in the winter time, with Billie Burke as Langdon's screwball wife. They'll all talk with "Gone with the Wind" dialects. Dissolution of the Laurel and Hardy partnership, plus this new treatment of Langdon and Hardy means that slapstick finally has bowed out of Hollywood. The Hal Roach lot was its final stronghold.

P. S. to all of you, wherever you are: My sincere appreciation for those birthday messages.

Church Memberships Rise 754,000 in 1937; Set New High Mark

New York, Oct. 2.—(AP)—The Christian Herald, in its annual report today, said church membership in the United States had continued to increase and had set a new high mark in 1937, with a total gain of 754,136 members 13 years of age or over. The publication listed the total membership of all religious bodies in the country as 63,848,094.

"The ratio of church membership to total population has shown a steady and remarkable increase," said Dr. Herman Carl Weber, editor of the Year Book of American Churches, "rising from 19.9 per cent in 1880 to 39.8 per cent in 1920, and 49.9 per cent in 1937 for persons 13 years of age or over."

Dr. Weber said Baptist groups, collectively, were still the largest Protestant denomination, with total membership of 10,332,005, followed by the Methodists, with 9,109,359. The Roman Catholic church remained the largest single religious denomination, with 15,492,016 adult members.

Offer Christ's Ideals as Cure for Social Ills

BY THE REV. JOHN EVANS.

Two internationally known church leaders, speaking yesterday from different Chicago pulpits and representing widely different communions, confirmed each other's appeals before great congregations for American Christianity's return to its founder's basic principles if the country is to escape social decline.

One speaker was Dr. Robert E. Speer of New York, venerable Presbyterian missions executive who, as a layman, has directed the work of missionaries throughout the world for his church for forty-seven years. In contrast to Dr. Speer in appearance and temperament, the other speaker, less judicial in appearance, more picturesque of utterance, and more dynamic was the Rev. Dr. Walter A. Meier, theology professor from St. Louis and the Lutheran synodical conference's hour radio preacher for the past several years.

Dr. Speer opened the thirty-second season of the Chicago Sunday Evening club, Orchestra hall. Dr. Meier spoke before a Lutheran rally at International amphitheater. Dr. Speer pleaded for an acceptance of Christianity as laid down by its founder.

"Christ did not first promise happiness," said Dr. Speer. "He asked unselfish service in the causes of truth, charity, purity, and forgiveness. These are the first principles of Christianity. 'I have left you an example,' said Christ, 'that ye should do as I have done.'"

Dr. Speer's address in part was interpreted as a criticism of a group of self-named "fundamentalists" found in several Protestant denominations.

"We are familiar with the attitude of mind which lays down requirements of Christian discipleship and excludes those who do not conform to them," said Dr. Speer. "The difficulties with most of these theories are that they leave out too much; use words not found in the Bible as their shibboleths or rallying signals, and work by the principle of shutting out people rather than counting them in."

Dr. Meier declared the job of the church must not be the building of an eternal kingdom of Christ on earth or to center activities on better housing conditions, better labor relations, better playgrounds or better plumbing, but to work for souls of men.

"In establishing inner peace will the churches effectively help men achieve the more abundant life," said Dr. Meier as he pleaded for churches, as such, to stay out of politics. On the other hand, Dr. Meier declared that politics is constantly trying to mix itself with religion and is trying to usurp the churches' function despite constitutional guarantees of religious freedom.

"Public, tax-supported education has often broken the constitutional guarantees which prevent the state from teaching religion, and our high schools and state colleges have often taught our young people doctrins that are opposed to the word of God," Dr. Meier declared.

The Housewife

One inexpensive way to brighten up a bedroom for winter is to invest in some brand new bedspreads. While the all-white ones are always good, the spreads in the beautiful colors now on the market will do much more for your room.

We have in mind some stunning chenille bedspreads that are made in Georgia. They're in solid colors and the thick chenille banding gives them a rich, velvety effect. You can get them in peach, in blue, in rust, in beige, in pink, green, lavender, yellow, or turquoise. And remember, you never have to iron them when they're tubbed. EDITH WEIGLE.

According to CULBERTSON

[Copyright: 1938: By Ely Culbertson.]

Of all the contracts that meet defeat, the greatest proportion fails, not because too many tricks have been bid, but because the declarer does not get the limit out of his resources. In other words, the average pair's bidding is considerably better than its play. Undoubtedly, many good contracts fail because of bad breaks, but countless safety plays have been devised or discovered to circumvent these bad breaks. It cannot be claimed that safety plays cover all conceivable occasions, but it is a fact that the player who knows all about them enjoys an appreciable advantage. Today's hand illustrates a simple type of safety play.

The bidding:

South	West	North	East
2 spades	Pass	2 no trump	Pass
3 spades	Pass	4 spades	Pass
Pass	Pass

West opened the heart queen, and declarer won with the ace. It was immediately apparent that the contract was safe unless declarer should encounter a very bad trump break. At a normal break he would have to lose only one spade, one heart, and one diamond. Perhaps the declarer was lulled into a false sense of security, and then again perhaps he did not know how to guard against the possibility of a bad break. At any rate he laid down the ace and king of trumps and was thoroughly disgusted to find that East had started with four trumps to the queen-jack and now had two sure trump tricks. The other losers were inevitable and the sound contract was down one.

This is one of the most standard of all situations. Hence, consideration of the proper method of drawing trumps will repay readers. Declarer should guard against the possibility of a 4-1 break [which is by no means unusual] by laying down one high honor from his own hand, then entering dummy [in this case with the club king] to lead a second trump toward the remaining high honor. If the lay of cards is as it was in this particular case, this maneuver is bound to hold the defense to one trick. On the second trump lead from dummy, if East splits his honors, putting in the jack, declarer wins with the king, and returns the ten spot, subsequently picking up East's last trump by playing the nine. If, on the lead from dummy, East ducks, declarer should put in the nine, not the other high honor. The reasoning is just this: [a] If the outstanding trumps should split 3-2, this method or any method will lose only one trump trick, which declarer can well afford. [b] If West, on declarer's left, holds four trumps to the queen-jack, there is nothing to be done about it. [c] If East, on declarer's right, "under the gun," holds four trumps to the queen-jack, he can be held to one trick by the prescribed method. Since the method cannot lose in any case, and can gain in one out of three possibilities, it is only logical to use it. To be defeated in such a contract as this is not only expensive, but ignominious.

BY IRVING VAUGHAN.

Because Joe McCarthy's Yankees are consistent destroyers of the hopes of enemy pitchers, there is a tendency to overlook another important item in their baseball repertoire. What with their homers and lesser items with which they pile up runs almost daily, few of the cash customers take much notice when the present three time league champions are in the field.

But the Yanks can field and there is no exaggeration about it. They are so good in this respect that nobody ever has been able to point out a flaw in their defense. There is this to consider about the Yankees when the other side is batting. The champions usually have such a handsome lead in runs that a little fielding relaxation is permissible. In a tight battle they're not that way.

Cubs Have a Defense, Too.

The fielding skill of the Cub machine which catapulted to a pennant can't be questioned. Whenever the Cubs are discussed the first assertion from an admirer is that they are great defensively. This always is brought up first, because nothing can be said in favor of their batting ability.

So if the Yankees can field as well as hit, whereas the Cubs are weak with their bats but sprightly on defense, it is not difficult to figure why the American leaguers should be top-heavy favorites in the world series opening here Wednesday.

Another item to consider is that the Yankees have a habit of hitting balls over the fences and against that kind of power with a bat fielding means nothing. The Yankees can make errors and more than erase the damage, if any, with a homer. The Cubs, having a far less deadly attack, can succumb under the effects of even one error.

The Two Bills Will Do.

The strong or weak point in any ball team is around the middle bag. The Cubs' combination of Bill Jurges at short and Billy Herman at second is as tight as any in the National league. Break up that pair and the Cub pitchers wouldn't have to guess what was wrong. They'd know instantly because hits, now stolen consistently by Herman or Jurges, would start going through one position or the other.

The Yankees' second base combination of this year hasn't been mentioned prominently, but it is just about tops in the American league and may be an edge speedier than the Cub pair. Joe Gordon, the freshman who supplanted Tony Lazzeri, can cover ground the Italian veteran abandoned seasons ago. The life Gordon has put into the second base labors has revived Frankie Crosetti at short and Frankie was above average even before being prodded into extra endeavor by Gordon's flashy toil.

Rip Has Edge on Lou.

The only place on the infields where the Cubs might have a shade is at first base, where Rip Collins has been fielding beautifully. His series rival at the post, Lou Gehrig, isn't as agile as in his earlier days. In the outfield, if nothing else than expert fly catching is considered, the Yanks have to concede nothing in any of the three positions. Joe Di Maggio, as a center fielder, can cover far more territory than can Carl Reynolds and a center fielder who can roam is highly important because of the protection he can give to his mates on either side.

As throwers, the Cub outfielders are not important. Neither Frank Demaree nor Reynolds can throw for distance and Phil Cavarretta, who may play because of the injury to Augie Galan, is not accurate. All of the Yankee fly chasers have excellent arms.

If Gabby Hartnett's hand, injured twice in the last few days, hampers him in the series the Yankees will have a bulge in the catching department. If Gabby is physically fit it should be a toss up between himself and Bill Dickey.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

St. Louis, Mo., Oct. 2.—The Cub-Cardinal season windup here today, which was won by the Cardinals, 7 to 5, was decidedly ho-hum for everybody but Larry French, who rather hated to take the rap for his 19th defeat of the season.

Because they didn't win the season finale the Cubs tied the record for low total victories by a major league pennant winner in a regulation season. Rogers Hornsby's Cardinals won the 1926 pennant with eighty-nine victories then went on to whip the Yankees in a sensational world series. The Cubs, of course, are hoping there is some sort of omen in the fact they won the pennant and the privilege of facing the Yankees by taking eighty-nine games.

Hack Boosts Average.

Though he featured substitutes in the game today Manager Gabby Hartnett had all his players in uniform and Stan Hack asked to play throughout to fatten his club leading batting average. He succeeded by making two singles and a double in five times at bat. Frank Demaree played for similar reasons and had two strike outs, two walks, and a single.

Aside from Hack, Demaree, and Collins, who didn't finish, none of the starters today has much of a chance to get in the world series lineup, unless O'Dea has to catch, which is unlikely according to Gabby.

Nine Strike Out.

Tony Lazzeri, batting star of the last world series, played throughout the windup encounter and did little to encourage his employment in the world series against his former mates, except as adviser and heckler. Tony was struck out twice by Paul Dean, starting and winning pitcher, and once by Mort Cooper. He flied out twice.

Dean struck out Lazzeri, Demaree, and Asbell in order with runner on third. In the first inning he fanned Lazzeri and Demaree to retire the side. Cooper struck out Lazzeri, Asbell, and Marty to end the game. There were nine Cub strikeouts in all.

The Cardinals took a one run lead in the first inning on long flies by Bordagaray and Medwick after Moore and S. Martin had opened the inning with successive singles. They increased the lead to three runs in the second inning when French walked Myers with one out and O'Dea threw Owen's bunt into center field to set the stage for Moore's double to left.

Cubs Bounce Back.

Mesner, Hack, and Demaree combined to get back two of these runs in the third. All three singled. Between Mesner's drive and one by Hack, French walked. The Cardinals went ahead, 4 to 2, in their half on Medwick's 21st home run of the season.

The score became 6 to 2 in the fourth inning when the Cardinals combined two hits with errors by Mesner and Demaree to get two more tallies. Walks to Mesner and French followed by Hack's double got one run back for the Cubs in the fifth, in which the Cardinals also scored on Medwick's double and Myers' single.

Marty's single, Collins' double, Myers' error on a fly, and Bordagarays' wild throw gave the Cubs their last two runs in the sixth.

BEARS' AERIAL ATTACK CRUSHES EAGLES, 28 TO 6

Chicago Scores Twice on Interceptions.

Philadelphia, Pa., Oct. 2.—[Special.]—The Chicago Bears pro football team defeated the Philadelphia Eagles, 28 to 6, today in a National league game.

Although the Bears rushed at will through an overpowered Philadelphia line, the Chicagoans scored all four of their touchdowns by air, two on Ray Buivid's passes, and the others on interceptions of Eagle efforts.

A crowd of 22,246 witnessed the rout of Philadelphia as first Lester McDonald, then Ferdinand Dreher took forward passes and ran ten and thirty-two yards, respectively. Joe Zeller gathered in one of Emmett Mortell's aerials late in the second quarter and ran twenty-three yards for the third touchdown, and in the third period George Corbett made a fifty-two yard trek with the ball on a pass interception from Dave Smukler to Arnold.

McDonald Takes Pass for Score.

The Bears put over their first touchdown midway of the first period. The Eagles' secondary became so worried about Jack Manders, Ray Nolting, and Bert Johnson that it failed to cover McDonald, the left end, who snatched Buivid's first pass and ran ten yards for a touchdown.

The second quarter hardly had started when Dreher seized a second from the former Marquette marksman, traveling thirty-two yards over the Eagles' goal line.

Hampered by a stiff wind, Mortell was off form on his usually good punting, and when he tried to pass toward the close of the second period Zeller, former Packer and one time Indiana university guard, intercepted the ball and ran twenty-three yards to score.

Bausch Loses Range.

Frank Bausch, Bear center, appeared to lose the range of his backs in the third period and started passing the ball erratically. The Eagles eventually got an offense under way, but Smukler was rushed as he attempted to pass and threw the ball into Corbett's hands. He took off for the Eagles' goal and was untouched in a fifty-two yard run.

The Bears then throttled down their attack and in the fourth period the Eagles made a touchdown themselves, but it was purely consolation. It came on a succession of basketball tosses across the line to Carter, runs by Dow and Mortell, and Smukler's accurate aim. Lineups:

Chicago's Battling Cubs Come Home Triumphant, Happy, and CHAMPIONS!

Dodgers Beat Cards, 13 to 0; First Victory

Brooklyn, N. Y., Oct. 2.—[Special.]—Brooklyn's Dodgers captured their first game in the National Football league this year and at the same time jumped into a three way tie for second place in the Eastern division by defeating the Chicago Cardinals in Ebbets field today, 13 to 0. A crowd of 17,129 saw the Dodgers strike twice in the second period to seal the victory.

The Cardinals, who were playing their third game within eight days, depended on their passing twins from Arkansas, Dwight Sloan and Jack Robbins, to carry them through, but they were not enough. Thirty-four passes were thrown by the Cardinals and fourteen were completed. The Dodgers tossed nine passes and were successful with three of them. The Cardinals picked up 143 yards on passes and the Dodgers only twenty-five. In first downs the Cardinals had fifteen and the Dodgers eight.

Set Scene in First Period.

The Dodgers set the scene for their opening touchdown near the end of the first quarter after Parker returned a punt twenty yards from the Cardinals' 48 yard line. Brumbaugh, Feathers, and Parker then hammered Chicago's forward wall for successive gains to the five yard line. On the second play of the new quarter Feathers scored on a reverse. Kercheval went in and kicked the extra point.

Brooklyn's final score came shortly thereafter when Robbins, who was back to pass, was tackled hard and lost the ball. It popped into the hands of Kinnard, Brooklyn tackle, who raced forty yards before he was brought down on the Cardinals' 12 yard line. After three line smashes had failed, Parker threw a short pass to Brumbaugh, who slid over the goal line for the score. Kercheval failed on the attempted kick for the extra point.

Touchdown Called Back.

The Cardinals went fifty yards on passes after the opening kickoff in the third period, but came to grief when Parker intercepted a pass on his 3 yard line and raced back forty yards. Two first downs brought the ball to the Cardinal 40 yard line, and then Parker got loose for forty more yards to cross the goal line. The ball was brought back, however, because Brooklyn was offside. The Cardinals then held and Brooklyn was forced to punt.

The Cardinals, passing frantically in an attempt to score, threatened late in the final quarter when a pair

FELLER FANS 18 FOR RECORD, BUT GREENBERG FAILS

Cleveland, O., Oct. 2.—(AP)—Bob Feller, young Cleveland Indian pitcher, hit the glory trail again today in the season's windup, but Cleveland lost twice to the Detroit Tigers, 4 to 1 and 10 to 8.

Feller struck out eighteen Tigers in the opener to break the major league record for strikeouts in one game. In 1936 Feller fanned seventeen Philadelphia Athletics to set an American league record and tie Dizzy Dean, then with the St. Louis Cardinals. His eighteenth victim today was Chet Laabs, who struck out the fifth time in the ninth.

Feller yielded seven hits, walked seven and hit Piet. He had two men on base when he got Laabs for strikeout No. 18. Feller's performance boosted his total strikeouts for the season to 240, leading both major leagues. Buck Newsom of the St. Louis Browns has 225.

Hank Greenberg failed to hit a homer and finished the season with 58, two under Babe Ruth's mark of 60 established in 1927.

Regret.

Today my Graphic History Book,
A tragic story told:
I saw the brave Napoleon,
An exile, frail and old,
On Elba, walk a lonely trail.
And as I paced beside,
I saw the disillusionment
His proud look could not hide.
I saw the terror in his eyes,
Distrust, frustration, too;
And, O, I am quite sure of this,
Regret was breaking through!
A lesson? Yes, my History Book
Made resolutions start.
But, God forgive a tear drop for Napoleon's broken heart.

The Substitute.

Here comes the fair haired boy,
Who threw that wonderful pass.
The fans are clapping with joy,
They say that he's got class.

And there goes my son,
Unknown, but resolute.
O, he's no one,
He's just the substitute.

He plays as hard as any one,
But his is not the usual story,
He plays the game for fun,
And not for fame and glory.

He has no streak of yellow,
And yet he is no brute.
He's but an ordinary fellow,
He's just the substitute.

ST. LOUIS FANS IN AT KILL FOR CUBS AND YANKS

St. Louis, Mo., Oct. 2.—(AP)—For the most part it was a dreary season for St. Louis baseball fans—but they got in on the kill in both major circuits.

Two weeks ago they had the satisfaction of cheering the Browns to a double victory over the New York Yankees, even though the Yanks clinched the American league pennant just by being on the field.

And yesterday the close National league race was won at Sportsmans park by the Chicago Cubs when they split a double-header with the contrary Gas House gang. So St. Louisans had their fingers in the pie even though they didn't get a slice.

OHIO LINE SHOWS GLARING FAULTS EVEN IN VICTORY

Indiana Reveals Potent Attack, Defense.

BY WILFRID SMITH.

Ohio State defeated Indiana, but Saturday night Bo McMillin, the Hoosiers' coach, quite likely was regarding future games more complacently than was Francis Schmidt of the Buckeyes. For while Ohio State marched seventy yards for its winning touchdown, the Buckeye line, before and after the five minute sortie at the start of the fourth period, was outplayed badly by the aggressive lads from Indiana.

Football victories generally are based on clean, accurate blocking on attack and a quick smashing charge on defense. Occasionally, as in Ohio university's victory over Illinois and again in the Buckeye conquest of Indiana, the weaker offensive eleven wins. But because of superior line play, Indiana actually seems better prepared for Illinois and the other teams on its schedule than is Ohio State.

The Buckeyes' tackling was also far below the standard necessary if Ohio State expects to share or win the Big Ten championship. Without exception Hoosier ball carriers gained ground by falling forward when tackled or twisting free to add a yard or two. Buckeye tacklers, generally harassed by charging linemen, were clutching and grabbing instead of meeting runs with jarring, decisive, shoulder attacks.

Substitutes Show Ability.

It may be Ohio State could not use its best line because of injury. However, it was apparent that several substitutes were better than the men who started the game. Joe Aleskus, at right tackle, had an advantage on Alex Schoenbaum, who was bothered continually on defense by Indiana's spin plays, so that he seldom, if ever, was the first to reach an Indiana runner. Schoenbaum's weight, listed as 223 pounds, was a liability. Carl Kaplanoff, 248 pounds, at right tackle was better, but the best tackle on the field Saturday was Indiana's Bob Haak.

Indiana's sturdy line forced Ohio to pass or run wide, even during its seventy yard touchdown drive. There were eleven plays in that march. Three were passes and gained thirty-two yards, including the ten yard touchdown pass from Jim Sexton to Don Scott. Of the other eight plays, five were directed outside of the ends and one went outside tackle for eight yards. Two plays at guard and center netted three yards.

Without fanfare Indiana turned loose several sophomores who should write splendid pages in Hoosier football history. Bill Smith, a 175 pound guard from Natrona Heights, Pa., played a fine game. Ed Herbert, blocking quarter back, and Cobb Lewis, right half, were other sophomores in the starting lineup.

Michigan Meets Chicago.

Results of other Western conference games Saturday followed the pattern of prediction. Michigan's veteran line, with additional back field aid from sophomores, made the most of Michigan State's defensive weakness at tackle to whip the Spartans, 14 to 0, before a record crowd for this series of 82,500.

Most gratifying to Michigan were the sustained marches by which both touchdown were scored. Since Chicago's new line scarcely can cope with Michigan for sixty minutes, in view of the scoreless tie Saturday between the Maroons and Bradley Tech, Michigan would seem ready to start its Big Ten campaign with a victory this week before meeting Minnesota's mighty men in Minneapolis Oct. 15. The Gophers, by superior line play, crushed Nebraska, 16 to 7, to wipe out the memory of last year's surprise defeat in Lincoln.

Minnesota still has a problem in the shortage of backs. With Harold Van Every out of the Nebraska game by injury Bernie Bierman shifted Larry Buhler to left half. Later George Franck took over this position. Wilbur Moore, right half, continues to be the work horse of the team and apparently Minnesota has no adequate replacement.

Purdue won its second game of the season from Butler, 21 to 6, and now advances to Minnesota for the opening Big Ten game for both universities. Purdue's advantage will be speed, but the game rests on how the Boilermaker line performs against the Gophers' behemoths.

Illinois Surprises.

Illinois exceeded expectations in piling up a 44 to 7 score on De Paul and by this victory proved that the loss to Ohio university was not an accurate measure of Illini ability.

Northwestern, with Jack Ryan fitting in at the left half back position, left no doubt of the Wildcats' improvement over 1937. Northwestern turned back Kansas State, 21 to 0. Wisconsin also measured up to advance prediction that the Badgers are improved by defeating Marquette, 27 to 0. The Badgers now must be favored to win from Iowa this week.

The outstanding surprise Saturday was Notre Dame's overwhelming conquest of Kansas, 52 to 0. A better estimate of the personnel of the Notre Dame squad will be provided in Atlanta this week against Georgia Tech, but inexperience is the only charge that can now be made against Notre Dame. It is entirely too early to make rash predictions, but it will not be surprising if Notre Dame still is undefeated when the Irish face Minnesota.

Players, Fans Riot as Sparta Triumphs, 4-2

A riot involving players and spectators marked the first meeting of the year yesterday between the Sparta soccer team, national champion, and the Manhattan Brewers, formerly the Maccabees. The Spartas triumphed, 4 to 2, after the game had been held up for 15 minutes by fighting.

The Brewers had just scored two goals to cut the Sparta lead to 4 to 2 when Frank MacDermott and Art Waldron came to blows. Members of both teams started to fight and quickly were joined by some of the fans. Order finally was restored by police.

In other matches the German-Americans defeated the Schwabens, 1 to 0, and the Swedish-Americans routed the Norwegians, 6 to 3. Sparta-Manhattan lineups:

Duck Hunting to Cost About Same as in 1937

BY BOB BECKER.

A survey which this department has made of duck hunting places on the Illinois river, along the Mississippi, and also around Cairo, Ill., where hunters go for geese, indicates that it's going to cost about the same as last season to rent a blind, decoys and boat for a day's shooting.

We have canvassed such Illinois river areas as Hennepin, Putnam, Henry, Lacon, Sparland, Bath, Rushville, Frederick, Browning, and Beardstown, in quest of places where a duck hunter may rent a blind for a day or two. In every instance the owner or operator of the marsh [which will be open to day shooting] reports that the charges for hunting facilities are about the same as last season. There is, however, quite a variation in these charges.

For example, in the upper Illinois one big marsh is asking $15 per day for one hunter in a duck blind, or $21 for two shooters in a blind. Around Lacon it's possible to get into a pretty good marsh for less than that. One day shooting place reports that its 1938 charge will be $15 for two men in a blind for a day's shoot, or $7.50 per person. This includes a boat and decoys. One must pay extra for food and lodging. Blinds may be rented at Beardstown for $7.50 per person per day with a hot noonday lunch included, as well as a pusher and decoys and a boat.

Around Miller City, Ill., the mecca for the goose shooters, the daily fee hunting places always have charged $10 per day for a pit and decoys. This year the same rate prevails.

of passes clicked and Brooklyn was penalized fifteen yards for holding. Tinsley, on an end-around play, made thirteen yards for a first down and, after Popovich had made five yards on a plunge, a pass, Robbins to Deskin, was declared completed because of interference. A fumble, in which both teams had a hand, occurred and the ball finally was recovered by Deskin of the Cardinals. The game ended shortly thereafter. Lineups:

SOX BREAK EVEN IN FINAL GAMES OF 1938 SEASON

Lose to Browns, 4 to 3; Then Win, 3 to 0.

Babbling Buck Newsom scored his twentieth victory and Johnny Rigney his ninth as the Browns and White Sox concluded the season by splitting a double-header in Comiskey park yesterday before 7,000. The Browns won the first game, 4 to 3, the Sox the second, 3 to 0. The latter contest was called at the end of five and a half innings of play because of darkness.

Newson held the Sox to eight hits, five of which came in one inning to account for all the Chicago runs, and struck out ten.

Thornton Lee yielded twelve hits while trying for his fourteenth victory. He suffered his twelfth defeat when the Browns put three hits and a pass together in the eighth inning for three runs and a winning margin. The first run, the result of Boze Berger's error, was scored in the fourth.

Rigney Really Pitches.

Rigney yielded three hits in the second game while the Sox got five off Emil Bildilli, a rookie southpaw. A bad throw by Catcher Harshany allowed two runs to score in the first inning. Rigney himself drove in the only earned run of the contest in the fourth when he singled to score Gerlach who had singled and advanced on a wild pitch.

The series ended with the Sox winning two and tying one in six games played in three days.

FIRST GAME

Newsom and Lee each pitched three scoreless innings in the first game before being scored on. In the St. Louis fourth Buster Mills was safe on Berger's wide throw, Sullivan doubled, and Hughes hit a long fly to Radcliff to score Mills. Newsom then singled and Rosenthal threw Sullivan out at the plate.

In the home half the Sox bunched singles by Radcliff, Gerlach, Tresh, and Lee for three runs and a fresh lead. Tresh's single drove Radcliff home and Lee's roller, which Hughes just managed to touch, scored the other two.

The Browns took the lead in the seventh when Bell beat out a hit to Meyer, Clift walked, and both scored on Gryska's triple to right center. Gryska tallied the run that gave the Browns a 4 to 3 lead when Hughes beat out a hit to Gerlach.

SECOND GAME

Bildilli had a bit of tough luck in the first inning of the second game when the Sox scored twice on a wild throw by Harshany. Meyer opened the inning with a double and Berger walked. Steinbacher and Connors struck out and as the latter fanned, Meyer and Berger executed a double steal. When Harshany threw wild past third, both runners scored.

Another Sox run was added in the fourth on Gerlach's single, Rensa's infield out and Rigney's single.

GIANTS BEAT BEES.

New York, Oct. 2.—(AP)—Vince Di Maggio set a new major league strikeout record for a season as the Giants beat the Boston Bees, 3 to 2, today. Di Maggio fanned four times during the game, giving him an unofficial total of 129 strikeouts for the season. The old record for one year's strikeouts was 120 by Gus Williams of the Browns in 1914.

MIDGET RACING TITLE WON AGAIN BY HOUSEHOLDER

Detroit, Mich., Oct. 2.—(AP)—Ronnie Householder of Los Angeles drove his tiny racer at an average of 68.05 miles an hour over 150 miles at the Zeiter speedway this afternoon to win the national midget automobile title for the second successive time. Householder's time for the distance was 2 hours and 12 minutes, almost six minutes faster than his 1937 records. Henry Banks of Royal Oak, Mich., was second, five laps behind Householder. Paul Russo of Chicago was third, fourteen laps behind the winner. Householder's share of the $5,000 purse was $1,500.

Turnstiles Hum, Records Fall in Big League Races

New York, Oct. 2.—(AP)—The 1938 big league baseball season, one of the dizziest—and most successful financially—in years, became history today.

It was a year of sore arms; booming home runs, featuring Hank Greenberg individually, and, as usual, the Yanks as a team; of the most spectacular stretch fight in thirty years of National league play; of Johnny Vander Meer's phenomenal record of two straight no-hit, no-run pitching performances, but most of all it was a fan year.

More than 10,000,000 fans, eclipsing by some 600,000 the 1937 mark and perhaps setting a new all time high when all the returns are counted, attended the two races.

The turnout probably was due in large measure to pennant races that were completely unexpected in their day-to-day developments. The Yankees had a stiff fight all through the first half of the season before overcoming the Cleveland Indians and Boston Red Sox. The Chicago Cubs, who clinched the National league pennant only yesterday, were counted out a month ago, after Gabby Hartnett had succeeded Charley Grimm as manager. They came back to win twenty-one of their last twenty-six games in a stretch fight tighter than any since the Fred Merkle play cost the Giants the title in 1908.

Perhaps the chief development was the epidemic of sore arms that took star pitchers off the active list. Carl Hubbell, great southpaw veteran of eleven years with the New York Giants, had to undergo an operation and may never pitch again. Lefty Grove, ranked as the No. 1 left hander of his generation, had his arm suddenly go dead in mid season. Schoolboy Rowe, Paul Dean, Van Lingle Mungo, Johnny Allen, and several others also were sidelined or had to be returned to the minor leagues.

And Dizzy Dean, central figure of the biggest player deal of the year, pitched only 75 innings after the Cardinals sold him to the Cubs for $185,000, highest price ever paid for a hurler.

For a time it appeared one of the greatest of all slugging records—Babe Ruth's 1927 mark of 60 home runs—would be wiped out as Greenberg set a hot pace through August and September. But he was stopped short in the last six games to wind up with 58, equaling Jimmy Foxx's record for a right hand batsman.

It was a year of Jimmy Foxx's comeback. Despite a sinus condition, he won the American league batting championship and led both leagues in driving in runs. Ernie Lombardi of the Reds won in the National league. The champion pitchers were Big Bill Lee, iron man of the Cubs, with 22 victories, and Charley Ruffing of the Yanks, with 21.

The two biggest disappointments in the pennant races were the Pirates and the Indians. The biggest joke of all came on the closing day, today. Cleveland's Bobby Feller, who never quite lived up to expectations, fanned 18 Detroit batters for a new major league record—and lost the game!

TRIDENT SAILS TO VICTORY IN YACHT HANDICAP

Trident, Henry Kohn's cruising cutter, won the Columbia Yacht club's second handicap race yesterday on the club course off Grant park harbor. Rear Commodore B. J. Myren's cutter, Kid Sister, was second, followed by the club flagship, Betty Bro, owned by Commodore Milton Friend.

Five races were sailed yesterday on the Jackson Park Yacht club's special one mile course by a fleet of the club's Frostbite dinghies, manned by members. The Nubbin, sailed by Mr. and Mrs. Bert Bellheimer, took the series by winning two of the heats and scoring 21 points. Fran Byrne, runner up with 18 points, won one race but was a consistent finisher in the other events. Mrs. Byrne, who last week captured the summer series of twenty races, was third with 15 points and one heat.

Chicago Roars a Welcome to Its Champions

the car windows as the special paused briefly, then rushed on to Chicago.

It's a Real Surprise.

These were small town folks. Most of the Cubs are small town boys and know that small town folks like to go down to the station on any pretext. They never dreamed that Chicagoans would go down to a station to look at ball players they can see any one of seventy-seven days in the regular home season. They really were surprised when they faced that mob last night.

Today's parade will form at Wrigley field at 11:30 a. m.

Hundreds of policemen will guard the line of march, to insure the procession's prompt arrival in the loop. Firemen in uniform, mounted police and the Black Horse troop will fall into line behind the automobiles bearing the team.

Ceremonies at City Hall.

The reception, deferred until today because of the late arrival of the Cubs from St. Louis last night, will be climaxed by official ceremonies on a specially constructed platform at the doors of the city hall. The players will be introduced by the mayor and each will receive a parchment scroll signifying his appointment as an ambassador of good will.

Members of the new century committee, headed by Corporation Counsel Barnet Hodes, and ten members of an aldermanic committee, led by Ald. Jacob M. Arvey, make up the party which is to pick up the Cubs in automobiles at the Wrigley field gates.

The route of the parade is east on Addison street to Lake Shore drive and then south through Lincoln park and down Michigan avenue to Wacker drive. The line of march from that point will be down State street to Jackson boulevard, then west to La Salle street and north to the city hall. Music will be provided by the Chicago police band.

Expect Large Turnout.

Huge posters, bearing the words, "Welcome Cubs, Champions!" will be placed in the city hall windows; flags will be displayed as for a national holiday. State street will be decorated with bunting and flags by the State street council.

Mr. Hodes said last night that his committee expects one of the largest turnouts in the city's history, and he urged all Chicagoans, whatever their baseball convictions, to greet the players as a matter of civic pride. Hundreds of extra policemen will be assigned to posts along the line of march to assure uninterrupted progress of the parade.

The Cubs, who had enough breath left to talk after their punishing reception, admitted their thoughts yesterday afternoon were far from Sportsmen's park in St. Louis. They merely were going through the motions while they laid plans for their world series engagement with the mighty Yankees, opening in Wrigley field at 1:30 p. m. Wednesday.

The happiest note in the most exciting experience the Cubs have known since Charley Grimm piloted them to a pennant in 1935 was struck by Manager Gabby, who announced that he will be behind the bat when the first ball is pitched in the first series game. His right hand, which has suffered cruel and unusual punishment all season, still carried evidences of its latest buffeting, but he'll be in there and that means that the Cubs will be a determined, fighting band of warriors, win, lose, or draw.

Hornsby Lauds Cubs.

The last two predecessors of Gabby Hartnett as manager of the Cubs, Charley Grimm and Rogers Hornsby, both residents of St. Louis, were at yesterday's game. Hornsby visited the Cub club house and extended congratulations. Grimm did not. He remained engrossed in his radio broadcasting.

Charley's reticence was subject to two interpretations. Some of his friends believed he stayed away for fear he would appear to be soliciting a share of the world series dough. Several members of the Cubs said that a split for Charley was under consideration but that sentiment had turned against the move when Charley failed to show up at the club house or in the Cub hotel.

The final action to be taken will be determined today when the Cub players will vote the shares of the juicy melon.

Hornsby, who has been an American league manager since he left the Cubs, said he believes the Cubs have an excellent chance to beat the Yankees and that he considers the Chicagoans the best National league entry since the Cardinals of 1934.

Gives Dizzy Good Chance.

Hornsby said he would like to see Dizzy Dean pitch the opener. He believes Diz's confidence and his new slow stuff would perplex the Yanks, the confidence being an asset because the Yanks rely upon terrifying pitchers, and the slow stuff being an asset because the Yankees don't like slow stuff.

Tony Lazzeri, long a member of the Yanks and hitting star of the last world series, who played second base today for the Cubs, says he thinks Tex Carleton and Larry French, with all their poor work in the National league this summer, might give the Yankees trouble, Carleton because of his butterfly stuff and French because of his left hand screw ball.

Hartnett has not made any announcements indicating who will pitch the opener. The decision rests between Bill Lee and Dean, it is said. If Lee opens, which appears to be the best bet, Bryant will pitch the second game in Chicago and Dean probably will open the New York end of the series.

Perry Defeats Barnes to Win Pro Net Title

Bruce Barnes of White Plains, N. Y., last of the valiant company which set out Wednesday to keep Fred Perry of England from the national professional tennis title and the $450 which goes with it, went down last night before this same Perry, 6-3, 6-2, 6-4, in the singles final on the Chicago arena courts.

It took Perry fifty-five minutes to defeat Barnes, whose carefully planned game early in the match surprised those who were accustomed to his usual net rushing tactics. This type of play enabled Barnes to hold his service until 3-all in the first set, when Perry broke through with two smashing overhead placements.

From this point on, Perry was in the lead almost continuously.

Perry pocketed an additional $240 when he and Vincent Richards won the doubles championship. They defeated Barnes and Berkeley Bell, 6-4, 2-6, 7-5, 13-11.

Although Perry aided with occasional overhead smashes, it was Richards' experience and steadiness which enabled the team to win.

JOHN A. LYNCH, RETIRED BANKER, DIES IN FLORIDA

Lung Congestion Fatal to Chicagoan at 85.

John A. Lynch, retired Chicago banker, died last night in Coral Gables, Fla., of a lung congestion. He was 85 years old. He had recently gone to Florida for the winter.

Mr. Lynch was a co-founder of the old National Bank of the Republic. He eventually became its president and board chairman. He retired from active banking in 1931 after the bank was merged with the Central Republic Bank and Trust company.

Native of Chicago.

Mr. Lynch was born in Chicago on June 11, 1853, the son of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Lynch. He was educated in local schools and the Dyrenforth Business college. In 1888 he joined the H. H. Shufeldt distilling company, and soon afterward became a member of the firm. He sold out his interests in 1891 to turn his career to banking.

A year later Mr. Lynch helped organize the National Bank of the Republic. He was soon elected president. He held that position to 1924 when he was chosen chairman of the board.

Heads Clearing House.

He retired as chairman in 1929, but continued his active interest in the bank until its merger. Mr. Lynch devoted his interests to many other affairs. In 1917 he became president of the Chicago Clearing House association to succeed Charles G. Dawes, who had resigned to enter the military service.

Mr. Lynch was active in Catholic church extension societies. He served as president of trustees of St. Mary's Training school, and played important rôles in the activities of the American Bankers' society, the Chicago Athletic club, and the Edgewater Golf club. His hobby was golfing. His widow, the former Clara M. Schmahl, survives. She will bring his body back to Chicago tomorrow.

NEWS OF FINANCE AND COMMERCE

FREIGHT CAR USE DRAWS NEARER YEAR AGO LEVEL

Estimate Issued for Fourth Quarter.

The nation's railroad freight car loadings in the last three months of 1938 will be 3.6 per cent less then in the last 1937 quarter, it was estimated yesterday. The estimate was made by the thirteen shippers' advisory boards which forecast freight car needs for various sections of the country.

On the basis of this estimate, freight trafic will make a much more favorable comparison with a year ago than it did in the third, second, and first 1938 quarters. The boards estimated early in July that third quarter shipments would be 19.6 per cent less than in the third 1937 quarter. The second quarter estimate was 27 per cent less than actual loadings a year earlier, and the first quarter was 26 per cent less than in the first 1937 quarter.

Gaining On Last Year.

The estimates usually are accurate to a high degree. If they are borne out, it will mean that railroad freight trafic—and therefore business as a whole—is gaining ground, closing the gap between this year and last year.

As explained by A. W. Wilkins, secretary of the midwest advisory board, the boards' estimates are for full carload lots only. They do not include freight that is handled in less than carload lots. They cover the twenty-nine principal commodities.

Shippers will need 5,318,986 freight cars to handle their goods in the fourth quarter, the boards predicted. In the corresponding 1937 period 5,516,292 cars actually were used to handle the twenty-nine commodities.

Ten Areas Expect Drop.

Ten of the boards said their districts would have less freight than in the fourth 1937 quarter. Three districts—the Pacific coast, Pacific northwest, and trans-Missouri-Kansas—predicted gains.

Of the twenty-nine commodities included in the estimate, increases are expected in ten and decreases in nineteen. The ten for which gains are predicted are: Flour, meal, and other mill products; citrus fruits, live stock, poultry and dairy products, salt, lumber and forest products, sugar, syrup and molasses, plaster, and paper, paper board and prepared roofing.

Estimates for All Areas.

The following table shows the total loadings for each district in the fourth 1937 quarter, the estimated loadings for the fourth 1938 quarter, and the percentages of decrease or increase:

No Prosperity in War Boom, Bank Warns

New York, Oct. 2.—(AP)—"A war boom is not real prosperity," the National City Bank of New York warned today in its monthly review of business conditions.

"War destroys and depreciates real wealth and the appearance of riches is an illusion caused by depreciation of money," the review said. The letter continued:

"The essence of civilization is the friendly association of people and their coöperation for common progress and welfare. War ruthlessly disorganizes this coöperative system.

Unbalances Organization.

"It throws the complex industrial organization out of balance and disrupts the relationships upon which trade is carried on. It withdraws men from mutually helpful and productive work and turns them to waste and destruction.

"It raises the demand for some goods to abnormal volume and reduces the market for others. It closes outlets to some exporters and opens them to others.

"Painful adjustments must be made to these changes to put the industrial organization on a 'war basis'; and after this has been done the adjustments necessary to get back on a peace basis may be even more difficult and depressing."

Discusses Czech Crisis.

Commenting on the recent political crisis in Europe over the Czechoslovak problem and its effects on American business, the review said:

"Under other conditions the European crisis might have caused a considerable setback in business activity in this country. Up to the present, however, trade and industrial production have shown fewer effects than might have been expected. Business was in an upswing, it was moving forward under good headway and its momentum has supported it against the growing hesitation."

NATIONAL BISCUIT ACCUSED BY U. S. OF ILLEGAL ACTS

Washington, D. C., Oct. 2.—(AP)—The federal trade commission today accused the National Biscuit company of New York of violating the federal trade commission and Clayton antitrust acts. The charge involved the sale of bakery and packaged food products.

The company had prevented competition and restrained trade unreasonably, the commission charged, by discount agreements with certain jobbers and wholesalers.

In some instances, it was alleged, the company paid its dealers arbitrary lump sums, "often without consideration other than the dealers' agreement to deal only in National Biscuit company products."

National Restaurant Group Convenes Today

A convention and exposition sponsored by the National Restaurant association will open today at the National Restaurant mart, 666 Lake Shore drive. Twelve thousand restaurant operators and others connected with the industry are expected to attend. Restaurant equipment and supply companies will have 141 exhibits at the exposition. The sessions will continue through Friday.

Bond Yields.

Investors' Guide: Will you explain to me the arithmetic of figuring the yield on United States government bonds and treasury certificates? Recently a 3¼ per cent treasury certificate closed at 109. The maturity date was given as 46-44, and the yield as 1.53 per cent. I figure a 3¼ per cent bond selling at 109, due in 1946, would yield approximately 2.98 per cent.—J. A. L.

Answer: You apparently are working out the yield on the assumption the bond will mature in 1946. If a bond is selling at a premium the yield should be calculated to the nearest date at which the bond may be called at par. In this case the year is 1944.

Assuming the bond is called in 1944, it will have a little more than five years to run. Total interest to be collected in this period is about $17 per $100 face amount. If you then deduct the $9 premium paid for the bond [because the government will pay at 100 instead of the 109 paid on the market] the net interest to be received is about $8 per $100. Divided by the five and a fraction years of the bond's life, the annual yield to maturity is found to be about 1.5 per cent.

This is an approximation. If you want a more accurate method we will send you an algebraic formula and an explanation of its use. Requests for copies of this formula for calculating bond yields should be addressed to Investors' Guide, accompanied by a self-addressed and stamped envelope.

French Gulch Dredging.

Investors' Guide: Can you tell me if the stock of the French Gulch Dredging company of Colorado has any value now?—G. L. B.

Answer: The French Gulch Dredging company went into bankruptcy in the early 1920s. All of its assets were sold by the receiver to the Florence Gold Dredging company in 1923. There was nothing left for the stockholders after payment of creditors.

Not the Same Company.

Investors' Guide: Is the Electric Boat company stock now selling for about $7 on the New York Stock exchange the stock of a corporation which was located in Chicago about twenty years ago?—F. T.

Answer: No. The Electric Boat company you refer to was incorporated in Illinois. The stock now being traded in is that of a New Jersey corporation. The Illinois corporation was dissolved in 1920. Its shares are worthless.

Steel Output Dips Slightly; Buying Lags

Steel ingot production eased slightly last week and buying of finished steel leveled off, the magazine Steel said yesterday in its weekly review of the industry. Last week's ingot output was estimated at 47 per cent of theoretical capacity, off a point from the preceding week's operating rate.

Production was down one point in the Pittsburgh district to 37 per cent, and was two points lower at 41.5 per cent in the Chicago district, Steel estimated.

Some Recovery Anticipated.

The lull in buying was caused by a combination of factors which in most cases are only temporary, the trade journal said. Some recovery in buying and operating rates is expected for this month. Most of the anticipated upturn will have to come from the automobile industry, which still has not got into heavy production, the journal added.

"Miscellaneous steel consumers are buying largely for immediate needs," Steel said, "since the price situation offers no incentive to cover any distance ahead. The automotive industry has adopted a similar policy, but while steel purchases to date for new models have been relatively light, heavier demand will be necessary the next few weeks.

Ford Inquires for Steel.

"The Ford Motor company last week took prices on steel for 50,000 of its 1939 model cars, and release of the tonnage is expected early this week, coincident with the start of assemblies of new models."

Scrap prices tend lower in several districts. Reductions of 50 cents at Pittsburgh and lesser cuts in other districts caused a drop of 25 cents in Steel's scrap composite price to $13.88 a ton. The lower scrap price was offset in the iron and steel composite by the recent pig iron price boost, moving the composite up 14 cents to $36.58 a ton. The finished steel composite is unchanged at $57.20 a ton.

The banking house reported cash on hand and on deposit in banks as $127,486,583, against $90,671,822 three months before, and United States government securities of $254,900,039, against $279,360,143. Stocks and bonds came to $6,337,020, against $8,218,758 and loans and bills purchased to $37,312,543, against $48,017,345.

The statement showed capital of $25,000,000, unchanged from the end of June and surplus and partners' balances of $18,599,815 against $18,553,712.

U. S. SUGAR CORP. REPORTS $621,687 PROFIT FOR YEAR

The United States Sugar corporation yesterday mailed to stockholders a report showing net income of $621,687 for the year ended June 30. This was equal, after preferred dividend charges, to 39 cents a share on the outstanding common stock, compared with $871,082, or 55 cents a share, in the preceding fiscal year.

The corporation's sugar production during the 138 day harvest, which ended on April 2, amounted to 53,246 tons of raw sugar, the largest crop ever produced in the history of the company.

Chicago Trade Less Active Because of War Alarms

Chicago retail and wholesale business slumped last week, according to observers of the Chicago Association of Commerce. Nervousness over the war crisis in Europe was believed to have been largely responsible for the sales downturn.

WHEAT SLUMPS AS EUROPEAN WAR SCARE ENDS

Speculative Buying Shrinks Rapidly.

The passing of the war scare was followed by a letdown in the wheat market last week. The buying fever that swept through the markets before announcement of the Munich conference disappeared rapidly when news of the four power pact was broadcast.

Wheat in Chicago fell 4 cents a bushel when the threat of war appeared to have been removed. Again the markets of the world are overshadowed by the basic fact that there is an abundant supply of wheat to meet all needs. Deficiencies exist in some countries; surpluses in others.

Governments Prop Prices.

Certain countries that need wheat cannot afford to buy it from the countries that have too much. But the fundamental price influence remains that the balance between supply and demand is not one that points to higher prices.

The governments of the United States and Canada have undertaken the task of underwriting the market quotations on wheat. It is this government support that is the chief prop for the market at the present time. The reasoning of the speculator is that neither the United States nor Canada can afford to permit too great a decline in wheat prices.

The ultimate success of government price pegging is not a consideration to the trader who is aiming at cashing in on the short term price changes.

Chicago Grain Shipments.

Chicago's advantageous location near the grain fields and its facilities as a lake port and railroad center have made it the principal forwarder of grain and grain products.

Corn and wheat shipments account for most of the grain flow out of Chicago. Last year shipments out of Chicago were smaller than receipts but were larger than shipments from any other city. They totaled 32,009,000 bushels of wheat and 30,025,000 bushels of corn.

Great Lakes shipments of wheat from Chicago last year were 19,254,000 bushels. The remainder of the total of 32,009,000 bushels went out by rail. Corn shipments by rail were 22,823,000 bushels, while 7,079,000 bushels were shipped on the lakes. Illinois waterways moved 123,000 bushels.

August and November usually are the busiest months for wheat shipments, and the largest volume of corn usually is shipped in October and November.

Day By Day Story of the Experimental Farms

by HOMER NEISZ

Vegetable Harvest

Oct. 2, 1938.

BIG piles of fall vegetables are thick in the fields and along roadsides around the rim of Chicago as Cook county truck growers complete their work of harvesting another good crop, the second in two successive years. There are big yellow pumpkins for pies and Halloween decorations; there are fall squashes and sugar beets.

Some gardeners are harvesting cabbage, carrots, beets, and cauliflower. A few still have late tomatoes and beans to pick. Later there will be celery, white turnips, rutabagas, kohlrabi, and late potatoes to harvest and market.

Crates Dot Fields.

Many fields are dotted with stacks of crates filled with onion sets, ready to be sorted and stored in frostproof buildings on the farms. They will be sold late in the winter for planting next year's crop. Cook county farmers annually grow about a million bushels of onion sets, twice as many as are produced in all the remainder of the United States.

Heavy rains damaged some of the truck crops in the county early this season, but good growing weather throughout most of the summer and early fall has made possible a bountiful harvest of most kinds of vegetables. Crops are abundant and the quality generally is good, except for some of the onions and potatoes that have had a bit too much rain and are not in good condition for storing.

Although nature, aided by hard work and careful management, has produced a good crop, the vegetable growers are not in a happy frame of mind. They say prices are so low that it is hard to make ends meet. August Geweke of Des Plaines, president of the Cook County Vegetable Growers association, says he doubts if any of the farmers will realize a profit from their truck crops this year.

Discouraging, He Says.

Geweke has been president of the association for 37 years and he thinks this has been one of the most discouraging seasons the growers have faced in his time. He says this is the fifth consecutive year that truck farmers in this area have found it difficult to make money, regardless of the size of their crops.

There are about 4,000 commercial vegetable growers in Cook county. All but about 500 of them depend almost entirely on truck crops for their income. Most of the truck farms are comparatively small, ranging from 10 to 60 acres. Virtually all the vegetables are sold and consumed in and around Chicago. The farmers bring them into the city in their own trucks and sell them on the South Water and Randolph street markets.

ACT TO PROMOTE LIGHT STEEL'S USE IN HOMES

New York, Oct. 2.—[Special.]—Bert L. Wood has been appointed engineer in charge of the promotion of the use of light steel construction in buildings by the American Iron and Steel institute, it was announced today. Wood formerly was with the Carnegie-Illinois Steel corporation.

"The use of heavy steel long has been established in construction," the announcement read, "but the use of light steels in residential and other building is a development of recent years and many building codes give them little or no recognition.

"At present the revision of building ordinances is in progress or is in contemplation in some 228 cities."

A Business of Your Own.

In Illinois and Indiana I have placed over 300 men in a business of their own, and am now ready to interview men for the South Side of Chicago and suburbs, where we have thousands of customers.

All office rent, girl hire, phone service, and even merchandise stock is financed by our company. You do not invest one cent.

Naturally, in a business as successful as ours, where many of the above men earned last week $2-$4-$50, and as much as $70 on a single day in percentage alone there are certain requirements. You must be between the ages of 22 and 50, absolutely honest and reliable, a hard worker, and teachable.

I will grant you a personal interview at 1:30 p. m. Monday, after which I will tell you whether or not we will finance a business for you on our electrical devices. George Buckley, 4th floor, 841 E. 63d-street.

No Merchandise to Sell.

We need the services of several men between 25 and 45 years of age to explain our unique plan to future users of our customers. Some direct sales experience helpful but not necessary. Must be satisfied with about $30 a week to start, on bonus and percentage basis. Drawing account privileged can be arranged if desired.
